POLICE INSPECTOR PIERCE'S WIFE IN RAIDED HOUSE

Surprising developments followed today a raid by Federal officers on an apartment at No. 1056 Commonwealth avenue and the arrest of three persons suspected to be connected with a $1,000,000 international rum-running plot.

It became known that Mrs. Harry Pierce, wife of the police inspector and daughter-in-law of former Superintendent of Police William H. Pierce, was in the apartment of Mrs. Della Clark Costello, Suite 9, No. 1056 Commonwealth avenue, when raiders arrested Mrs. Costello and two men in the alleged conspiracy.

Two men are being sought by Department of Justice agents—"Charlie" Costello, intimate and associate of Joseph J. "Sport" Sullivan in the notorious Chicago White Sox gambling scandal, and a Mr. Robinson, both of Boston.

GAVE JEWELS FOR BAIL.

Mrs. Costello, said to be a familiar figure in bright light cafes, where she has been spoken of as the "Diamond Queen," furnished $25,000 worth of diamonds and other gems as security for $10,000 bail.

A brief historical sketch of the smuggling plot by Joseph V. Carroll, Assistant United States District Attorney, revealed that plans were laid last Summer for the running of liquor from Glasgow, Scotland, to Boston, aboard an ocean liner. One

SIX DEAD ON TRAIN FROM BOSTON

Pullman Flier for Cincinnati Hits Auto and Is Derailed Near Columbus

Columbus, O., March 30.—six persons are known to have been killed and thirteen were injured when a fast Big Four Pullman train, en route from Boston to Cincinnati, struck a large touring automobile at a grade crossing at the north city limits today.

The engine left the tracks and turned over in the ditch, four Pullman sleepers piling on top of it. All of the cars in the train, with the exception of a dining car, left the track.

The train, due in Columbus at 7:50 a. m., was more than an hour late and was running at an estimated speed of 65 or 70 miles an hour. It is one of the heaviest and finest trains operated by the Big Four.

The automobile was struck at the Oakland Park avenue crossing, the wreckage piling up at the North Broadway crossing.

The known dead are:

Earl W. Wilson, fireman, Columbus; J. W. Kies, fireman, Cleveland; Mrs. Frank S. Hemminger, of Columbus, wife of an attorney, who was driving the automobile that was struck. Robert Hamminger, five years old, her son, infant Hemminger and Horace Holbrook, Warren, O.

Rescue workers said other dead might be found in the wreckage.

Every available ambulance and doctor was rushed to the scene of the wreck, and soon the injured

5 FIRES AT NANTASKET WERE SET

Last Conflagration and Four Others Due to Work of a Firebug

The big fire at Nantasket Beach Wednesday night was started by a firebug.

Four other fires at Nantasket within the last three years were also incendiary and probably started by the same means.

This was announced today by State investigators

State Detective Murtagh, who put in Thursday investigating at the scene of the fire, said today:

"I have no doubt the fire was set."

Deputy State Fire Marshal Timothy G. Murphy said:

"We are proceeding on the theory that this fire was incendiary. We are looking for a pyromaniac. From such facts as we have been able to collect we believe the fire was started by a firebug."

The State Inspector Murtagh discussed the relation of this last fire to previous ones at Nantasket Beach, saying:

"This is the fifth suspicious fire in

ASKS SACCO BE KEPT IN HOSPITAL

Judge Thayer Wants Alienists to Make Thorough Examination of Case

Worcester, March 30.—Following a conference today Judge Thayer announced that in his opinion Nicola Sacco should remain in Boston Psychopathic Hospital until further investigation, thorough in every way, can be made of his condition.

This statement was made by Judge Thayer in spite of the request of District Attorney Harold C. Williams of Norfolk County that Sacco be taken from the hospital and sent to jail, the ten-day period at first ordered for Sacco in the hospital expiring tomorrow.

Sacco, convicted of a payroll murder in South Braintree, was sent to the hospital for observation after a hunger strike lasting a month.

Dr. C. MacFie Campbell, director of the hospital, read a report at the conference from which Judge Thayer interpreted that the doctor holds Sacco is not and never has been insane, or suffering from paranoia, as was claimed by alienists for the defence.

Judge Thayer wanted Dr. Bryan of the Worcester State Hospital to pass upon the mag, but as the doctor is now in Porto Rico this is impossible. The judge is therefore content that the affair be left in the hands of Dr. Campbell to decide, the doctor calling in whatever counsel he may need to establish Sacco's condition.

It is expected Dr. Campbell will confer with Dr. Meyerson, who is employed by the defence.

In Dr. Campbell's report it is to be inferred, according to Judge Thayer, that Sacco's condition was brought about by his long hunger strike in jail, which apparently weakened him both physically and mentally.

The judge said that shortly after Sacco's admission to the hospital he was given barley gruel, and orange juice and that seemed to have been discovered as the cure for paranoia due to Sacco's rapid recovery towards normality.

Bill Hart a Nickel Nurser, Says Girl

From her seat in the movie theatre, Elizabeth MacCauley saw a Bill Hart that was a combination of all the heroes of fiction and history. But when she saw him "backstage" he was revealed in a different light. Previous installments of Miss MacCauley's story, published exclusively in this newspaper, told of the Hollywood romance and of Hart's alleged repudiation of her and the child she says is their child.

In today's installment, as told by Miss MacCauley to Harold R. Hall of the Boston American staff, Hart is shown in a revealing close-up that will probably not be broadcast by his press agents.

By HAROLD R. HALL

"I believe Bill Hart loves a nickel more than any person I ever met. Without a doubt he is one of the stingiest men in the world. A nickel means a lot to that man, and he is very careful in his distribution of them.

"When I met Bill in Los Angeles I had no idea as to how much money he was making. I knew, of course, that he was one of the heroes of the screen, but knowing nothing then of the salaries paid these stars, I had no idea what he was being paid. In fact, I had not given it a thought.

Daniel Keefe, No. 16 Medford street, Charlestown, beverage license, one week.

Morris Cohen, No. 1342A Blue Hill avenue, third-class drug license, suspended one week because clerk sold a pint of whiskey to a policeman.

2 Dead, 16 Hurt in Blaze Near Hospital

New York, March 30.—Two firemen were killed and sixteen injured today fighting a spectacular fire that swept two factories and four tenements in the East Side, for a time threatening Bellevue Hospital with its 2,000 patients.

Most of the dead and injured were buried beneath a brick wall which was toppled into the street by a gas explosion.

The fire was declared by Chief Kenlon to be the worst he has seen in years.

FRY GETS 18 MONTHS' SENTENCE

Ralph A. Fry, former Boston narcotic drug inspector, was sentenced today to eighteen months in Atlanta Penitentiary by Judge John A. Peters in United States Court at Portland, Me. He appealed.

Fry was found guilty by a jury of conspiracy to defraud the United States government through the extortion of "hush money" from Maine physicians accused of violating the narcotic drug laws.

The convicted inspector was indicted with Dr. Erwin C. Ruth, formerly the agent in charge of narcotic inspectors assigned to New England. Ruth was acquitted.

Dr. Frederick Tozer, proprietor of a Portland sanitarium, was accused of cooperating with Fry and indicted. After his arrest he turned State's evidence.

Dr. Tozer now faces deportation to Canada as an alien convicted of a felony. The case against the two doctors and the inspector attracted widespread attention, because of the number and prominence of physicians involved and because it disclosed drug and liquor revels said to have been participated in by Fry.

On arrival at the court today Fry expected that United States Attorney Frederick Lyer would intercede for leniency because he had made a statement pertaining to the activities of drug smugglers and others which was expected to help the government prosecute offenders.

Attorney Dyer made no such move. He moved for immediate sentence as soon as Judge Peters opened court. Attorney William R. Pattangall, counsel for the ex-inspector, appealed after the sentence.

GEM-BEDECKED WOMAN HELD IN $1,000,000 PLOT

2 MEN ARRESTED WITH HER; TWO OTHERS HUNTED

cargo alone is reported as consisting of more than 12,000 cases.

Admission was made by Department of Justice agents that men and women socially and financially prominent were involved in the conspiracy, presumably through the purchase of wholesale quantities of the smuggled liquors.

Inspector Pierce at his home later today, explained that his wife was an old acquaintance of Mrs. Costello; that she met Mrs. Costello downtown yesterday and that Mrs. Costello asked her to call last evening and fix a hat. Mrs. Pierce had just arrived at the Costello apartment when the raiding officers appeared. The officers questioned her and after weeping she fainted.

The arrest of Mrs. Costello, Alexander Goldberg and David Polo in the Costello suite marked a climax in the history of rum smuggling, according to Federal agents who have been investigating for months.

SALES IN 200 CASE LOTS.

The authorities say that this plot was engineered on a gigantic scale and that the most systematic modus operandi ever known was employed by the conspirators, who kept their headquarters at Mrs. Costello's home and there made sales in lots of 200 cases and upward.

The foundation for the smuggling was laid last summer when one of the five named went to Glasgow and there completed arrangements to take over virtually the entire supply of an internationally known distillery, according to Assistant United States Attorney-General Carroll.

It was hinted that the greater part of this smuggled whiskey found its way to the cellars of wealthy Back Bay and Brookline families. It was admitted by officers that a number of men and women of social and financial prominence are implicated in varying degrees.

An idea of the extreme importance the authorities attach to the arrests made may be obtained from the fact that bail of $10,000 was demanded for Mrs. Costello. She obtained this at 3 o'clock this morning.

HELD IN RECORD BAIL.

The two men are being held because of inability to raise $15,000 bail each.

Never before in the annals of the United States District Court in Boston has such a high figure been asked in cases of persons arrested for smuggling.

Mrs. Costello, prior to her arraignment at the Federal building, vigorously denied all knowledge of liquor running and maintained her innocence. She upheld her husband as a "man wrongfully accused."

The trio were arrested at Mrs. Costello's apartment. She is quite well known in that section. When taken to Station 14, Brighton, she had a small bag of diamonds and jewelry. However, it was not enough for bail.

The two men had large sums of money. A search of Polo revealed a bank book showing deposits in the Old Colony Trust Company of $14,609.

WOMAN MAKES STATEMENT.

This became known after Mrs. Costello had given a statement. She said:

"They told me nothing except that I was under arrest for smuggling," she said. "I do not know any more. I opened the door of my apartment and there were blue coats and plain clothes men.

"They asked for my husband. He has been out of town on business for some days. I do not know where he is. I know the police want to arrest him.

"Mr. Polo and Mr. Goldberg are reputable business men, clothing manufacturers in Montreal. They are old friends. They have been visiting here for several days."

Great secrecy was maintained in making the arrests. The deputies who made the arrests knew nothing of the plans of the Federal authorities until the warrants were placed in their hands. Even then the story leading up to the warrants was not divulged to them.

Deputy U. S. Marshals James Fraser, Christopher Gullott and James M. Cunningham gained admission to the apartment on a pretext. When they stated their business, Mrs. Costello invited them to make themselves at home while she and the two men made preparations to accompany them.

Mrs. Costello, also known as Delia Clark, and the two men had just finished dinner when the marshals appeared. They were taken to Police Station No. 14 and booked.

The warrants specifically charge conspiracy to defraud the government by illegally importing intoxicating liquors into this country. The amount of revenue loss involved in the arrests is said to mount high into the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Owen McKenna, an investigator of the United States Customs Office, is the complainant in the three cases. He specifies dates in January, February and March, alleging felonious conspiring with other persons to unlawfully bring liquor into the United States from Scotland.

On arriving at the police station, Mrs. Costello was given permission to communicate with her garage relative to the disposal of her auto mobile, which had been parked in the vicinity of her home.

Brakeman on Top of Car Strikes Bridge

Brakeman Joseph McDonald of No. 125 Hillsborough street, Newtonville, was seriously injured today while riding a freight train under the Washington street bridge in Somerville.

McDonald, who was walking along the top of the freight, did not notice that it had reached the bridge when he was knocked down and rendered unconscious. The freight was stopped and McDonald was taken off and rushed to the Cambridge Relief Hospital, where it was found that he was suffering from a fractured skull and lacerations about the neck and shoulders. His name was placed on the danger list.

WIFE TREATED HIM AS LODGER, HUSBAND SAYS

Morris Wallace of Roxbury wrecks buildings for a living.

"But I don't think he was such a good building wrecker as a home wrecker. He wanted to borrow $2,000 from me to put in his business."

So his wife, Rose Wallace, told Chief Justice Hall of the Superior Court today, in testifying for her divorce libel on grounds of cruel and abusive treatment and desertion.

Wallace was in court to contest her libel and seek a divorce on his own account on the same grounds alleged by his wife.

The Wallaces were married in 1918 and lived at No. 19 Intervale street, Roxbury, where Mrs. Wallace lives now. He had three daughters by a former marriage; she had a fourteen-year-old boy by a former marriage. The combination lasted just three months, Wallace said.

HAD SEPARATE ROOMS.

"My wife insisted on a separate room. She refused to acknowledge me to her friends as her husband. She tried to give the impression she was simply a lodger in the house. She even went by her first husband's name.

"When we met people she knew on the street she wouldn't introduce me. When I remonstrated she said: 'I'm ashamed of you, you're such a queer man.'

"A week after our wedding she took me to call on her sister, but made me sneak in the back way."

"LADY, I'M LEAVING."

The break came, he said, when she refused to move from the Intervale street house. He moved. She stayed there, which constituted his desertion charge. But Mrs. Wallace charged that, in leaving, he deserted her.

Mrs. Wallace testified that her three step-daughters nagged her continually and kept holding up their late mother to her as an example.

When Wallace left, she said, he parked her furniture in one room of the house and, when he was ready to go, opened the door of that room and said:

"Lady, I'm leaving. You can do anything you please."

The court took the case under advisement.

VISITORS FLEE AS SPICE FIRM IS RAIDED

The police liquor squad went up to the Empire Spice Company's place on the third floor at No. 91 Fulton street in the market district today.

But Inspector George Patterson, Sergeant Hines and their patrolmen were not looking for spices.

They went tapping around the walls.

A man appeared at the stairway door, had one look at the first cop he spied, then went away quickly.

The police kept on tapping.

Another man came to the stairway door, spied a cop or two and "faded."

Fifteen or so such callers came, saw and got away quickly.

Meanwhile the police found, they said, a false partition running along two sides of the room. Behind this partition they found and seized about $5,000 worth of bottled goods.

The bottles held, the police said, whiskey, alcohol and other spirits.

Furthermore, the police asserted that the place was a bootleggers' headquarters. They suspect that the fifteen or so men who came to the door, turned around and went right away again, were bootleggers seeking renewal of supply.

FUR THIEF FIRES AT CLERK ON BOYLSTON ST.

Two men entered the fur store of Lamson and Hubbard at No. 330 Boylston street today, helped themselves to a $800 fur coat and left by the front door. Carlisle Prout, a clerk, followed the pair into the shopping crowd.

When the men saw Prout coming one of them whipped out a revolver and fired one shot at him. Prout ducked back into the store and two men shoppers ran to cover. The men escaped in an auto.

Here Comes Lord Robert Light on Mussolini
A Dead Goddess? Not Yet
The Name Is Enough

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

LORD ROBERT CECIL and a collection of New York newspaper men saw each other yesterday. The line at the head table included, sitting next to each other, Frank A. Munsey, who supplied the food; Lord Robert Cecil, Senator Beveridge of Indiana, William Randolph Hearst and Thomas Lamont of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., all most becoming and appropriate.

THERE WAS also William O. Reick, who went reporting with this writer nearly forty years ago, and Dayton, publisher of the Evening Journal, the ablest publisher with one possible and doubtful exception in the United States. There was A. Moore, "the magazine king," also Ochs, who owns the New York Times, and is constantly hiring more warehouses to hold his money. And Wiley, who goes everywhere that Ochs goes, like the little bird that accompanies the rhinoceros and warns it. Otto H. Kahn was there. His specialties are money and music, with a little extra pressure on the money. Also Melville Stone, who joined the "Why Did I Do It Club" when he sold the Chicago News to Lawson.

THE NEWSPAPER MEN saw and heard in Lord Robert Cecil an absolutely sincere, earnest, well meaning man. It was a private party, so his speech cannot be reported.

They saw a typical Englishman, the top of his head bald, hair on the sides black, a black, short coat, watch chain across his chest—we don't do that here any more.

HE SPEAKS an English more easily understood than that of the average Englishman. He does call Europe "Yurrup," softly and sweetly. He pronounces the word "Ruhr" without pronouncing the "r" the "u" or "h." No American could do that. And "Hear, hear," something that all Englishmen say when anybody else is making a speech, every letter that you would pronounce in saying "here" is silent.

BE POLITE to Cecil if you meet him. He is one of many Englishmen that give their lives and services, their earnest thought and all their ambition to their country. We could use a hundred such men here. England breeds statesmen through centuries, and they work not to be Governor or President or something else, but that it may be said of them: "He did something to make his nation greater and safer."

MUSSOLINI, dictator of Italy, formerly a Socialist, now powerful one-man ruler of a big nation, gives information about himself in an article written for the Fascisti Review, Gerarchia. Here are quotations about liberty:

"Men nowadays are tired of liberty.

"Both in Russia and in Italy it has been demonstrated that it is possible to govern outside, above and against all liberal ideas. Neither Communism nor Fascismo have anything to do with liberty."

PEOPLE WANT power imposed from above for their own good is Mussolini's idea, and he makes it plain.

Read more:

"Liberty is no longer a chaste, severe maiden for whom generations in the first half of the last century fought and died. For the intrepid, restless youths who are now in the dawn of a new history in other words exercise a greater fascination, namely, order, hierarchy and discipline.

"Fascismo is not afraid to declare itself liberal or anti-liberal. It has already passed, and if necessary will again pass, without the slightest hesitation over the body, more or less decomposed, of the Goddess of Liberty."

THAT'S AN interesting revelation. Mussolini is right in one limited way. After a great war or revolution, men become tired of strain, tired of thinking for themselves. Like a dog standing on its hind legs, they like to get down on the ground and rest. France was

ANDOVER MILL MEN STRIKE FOR EXTRA 10 P. C.

What is regarded as the opening wedge of a fight for a return to the full 1920 wage scale was started by employes of the Marland mills of the M. S. Stevens Company at Andover today when fifty weavers went on strike demanding an additional 10 per cent. increase in addition to the 12½ per cent. granted by the Stevens Company last week.

A return to the one-loom-per-operator system was also demanded.

Officials of the mills met representatives of the weavers today and agreed to the one-loom system, but refused the additional wage increase. The workers refused to concede a point.

Two more mills today announced 12½ per cent. wage increases, following the example set by the Marland Mills. These are the Park Hill Manufacturing Company of Fitchburg, employing 1,500 workers, and the Exeter Manufacturing Company of Exeter, N. H., employing 350. The new wage is effective May 1 in each instance.

BOLD THEFT OF $30,000 GOODS

New York, March 30 (By International News Service).—A big motor van loaded with $30,000 worth of men's furnishings was boldly stolen today in the heart of the busy wholesale district by two men who leaped to the driver's seat and dashed away almost under the eyes of the owners of the truck and clothing.

The van had been driven up to the West Nineteenth street entrance of Cohen, Goldman & Company, this afternoon with a load of goods from the factory. The driver and helper of the truck went inside to the offices to arrange for unloading.

While the men were inside, two strangers stepped up to the van, leaped into the seat and made off amid shouts of the driver and proprietors who had emerged just in time to see the daring theft.

that district in three years. All four previous ones were incendiary. They may have been the work of the same firebug.

PICKED DANGEROUS NIGHTS.

"There were two fires at the rear of a hotel owned by a man named Anastos. There was a fire at the rear of McDonald's garage. There was a fire at the rear of Sweeney's restaurant.

"All these places are within a stone's throw of where the fire started Wednesday night. All five started at night; all five in the Winter; all five on nights when stiff northwest gales were blowing. The person or persons who started these fires picked nights when they would be most dangerous.

"In the case of one of the two fires at the Anastos Hotel a mattress was set on fire in the rear of the building.

"In the restaurant fire we found an ice chest in an alcove in the rear of the building had been saturated with kerosene.

"All the evidence in the present fire showed that it was started beneath a piazza at the rear of the Palm Garden. There was no occasion for anyone being there. The opportunity for a spark or ember flying to that point was exceedingly remote.

SET FROM OUTSIDE.

"There had been night men at work in Paragon Park during the day, but not one of them so far as I have been able to learn, had been near the scene of the fire outbreak.

"The fire was set from the outside.

"There was no evident motive which would connect the owners of the property with the fire in any way. Their insurance is relatively small. It would in no way compensate them for the loss. They were on the eve of opening the park for a long Summer season."

All the fires were discovered by nurses' chance.

The Wednesday night fire was discovered by Charles Hasborough, twenty-four years old, of Fairmount street, Hull.

SAVED BY NICKEL.

Shortly before 8 o'clock Wednesday evening Hasborough was escorting a girl friend along a street on Nantasket Hill, about a mile from Paragon Park but overlooking the park.

Hasborough and the girl hurried to the nearest telephone pay station. Hasborough did not have a nickel in the change in his pocket, but he borrowed a nickel from the girl and telephoned to a man named O'Day.

The latter, as State Detective Edward C. Murtagh understands, got in touch with Watchman Dodge and

GOLD COAST AUTOIST FINED $100

Tishman, Harvard Student, Struck North End Girl With Car and Didn't Stop

Norman Tishman, Harvard student, a resident at Dunster Hall on the "Gold Coast," was fined $100 for operating his automobile to endanger the safety of the public by Judge Lourie in Municipal Court today.

At the same time Roger W. Converse of No. 101 Chestnut street, who is listed in the Social Register, was fined $20 by Judge Sullivan on another session of Municipal Court for the same offence.

Both offenders were found not guilty of operating while under the influence of liquor and intoxication. Both were arrested as result of accidents.

On March 11, Tishman drove his machine through Garden court, North End, which is restricted to pedestrians, and struck twelve-year-old Vincenzo Romano. He continued without stopping.

An alarm and the license number of the machine was sent to all police stations. Some time later Mounted Officer Francis D. Sullivan chased Tishman along Massachusetts avenue and arrested him. Lieutenant Francis Hogan of Back Bay station, however, refused to book him and he was released.

The police testified that he was not aware of the accident as the victim made no outcry nor did any one halt him. He was corroborated by Miss Beatrice Brooks of Yale road, Brookline, who was with him, and Julian Brady, another "Gold Coaster," when the mishap occurred.

Judge Lourie then warned of the seriousness of driving over a restricted street. He found Tishman guilty of reckless driving and fined him $100. He dismissed the other charges.

Converse, the police say, hit Stephen King of 11 street, South Boston, an Elevated employe, at Massachusetts and Commonwealth avenues on February 11. The injured man suffered a fracture of the skull.

Officer Sullivan found no evidence of intoxication. This was largely because of King's testimony.

were being received at the hospitals.

Among those reported injured were:

Dorothy Coppock, a student at Wellesley College, Wellesley, Mass., enroute to her home in Greenville, O., for the Easter vacation. C. H. Lewis of Boston, S. L. Nelson, Bowdoinham, Me., and F. B. Sheldon of Virginia, Ill., a sales president of the Toledo & Ohio Railroad.

Train No. 11, of the Big Four passenger service according to South Station officials, leaves New York for Cincinnati. Train No. 15, which leaves Boston at 2 p. m. joins No. 11 at Cleveland. A number of Boston passengers are believed to have been aboard the combined train when it left Cleveland.

WIFE HAD MITCHELL TRAILED

Mate of Dorothy King's Patron Long Suspected His Broadway Affairs

New York, March 30.—J. Kearsley Mitchell, millionaire society leader of Philadelphia, is "no longer on probation" by his wife and father-in-law, E. T. Stotesbury, who have turned the microscope of investigation upon Mitchell's past life, according to the following story, printed today by the New York Evening Journal.

"Philadelphia—J. Kearsley Mitchell is no longer on probation. At the palatial residence where he has been 'explaining things' for the past three days to his aristocratic wife, Mrs. Frances Stotesbury Mitchell, daughter of E. T. Stotesbury, head of the banking house of Drexel & Co. and financial partner of J. Pierpont Morgan, this statement was made to inquirers:

"We know nothing of the affairs of Mr. Mitchell."

TRAILED BY SLEUTHS.

"Startling disclosures were made to Mrs. Mitchell during the hours that his wife held the floor, during the probation period, and expressed her opinion as to his actions, which were spread, it is stated, on reliable authority, over a period of several years.

"Mrs. Mitchell informed her husband, it is stated here today, that she had been watching him through private detectives during the past few months. But the life he led as 'Mr. Marshall' was a surprise and a terrific shock to her.

"It was also stated today that Edward T. Stotesbury has engaged two of the best-known detective agencies in New York to check up Mr. Mitchell's career of recent years.

"Whether Mrs. Mitchell has finally turned against her husband remains to be seen."

However impassioned his love notes to Dorothy King, Mitchell was "fooling" her as thoroughly as he says she "fooled" him.

For Mitchell was revealed today in information obtained by the Boston American as having maintained an apartment in New York in which he was paying the rent of two girls during part of the period in which his money was supporting Dorothy King's rent and insuring her livelihood.

Mitchell, the Keenan family and Guimares were all summoned to appear before Acting District Attorney Pecora today.

MITCHELL KNEW GUIMARES.

When Mitchell was interviewed last Saturday by Assistant District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora, he declared that he had never met or heard of Albert E. Guimares, the man most favored by "Dot" King. He declared that he considered that "Dot" in her friendship with Guimares had badly "fooled" him, Mitchell.

The information in possession of this newspaper is that Mitchell not only knew Guimares, but that he had planned to be rid of Guimares by making him sales manager in Brazil and other South American countries for his Philadelphia rubber company.

GUIMARES RETRACTS.

Subsequently, Guimares today admitted that "Dot" a number of times had told him that Mitchell was her "John Marshall." Previously Guimares had insisted he never had heard of Mitchell.

The apartment for which Marshall paid, unknown to Dorothy King, upon whom he was lavishing an abundance of money, jewels, Liberty Bonds and apparel, was in West Seventy-second street.

Gland Operation for Hetty Green's Son

COL. E. H. R. GREEN AND WIFE
Rich Massachusetts Man Declares He Has Lost 15 Years With the Assistance of Doctor.

New York, March 30.—Colonel Edward H. R. Green of Massachusetts, son of the late Mrs. Hetty Green, has undergone the so-called Steinach "rejuvenation" operation it was performed by Dr. Henry S. Pascal in St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

After a week's stay in the hospital and a brief convalescence in his apartment at the Waldorf-Astoria, Colonel and Mrs. Green went South and are now cruising in Florida waters in the houseboat Pioneer, having taken it over temporarily after President and Mrs. Harding and their party had completed their cruise in it. Before embarking Colonel Green wrote to a friend in New York that he felt better than he had in fifteen years.

The operation performed upon Colonel Green consisted of an incision and the ligature of a duct leading from one of his glands. Professor Eugenes Steinach of Vienna, who devised the operation, claims this procedure within modest limits prevents the process of becoming senile. The glandular secretion of the patient, Steinach asserts, is revived and strengthened.

Colonel Green was born in London, England, on April 13, 1868. He married Miss Mabel Harlow of Chicago in November, 1917. He inherited half of the great fortune left by his mother, but prior to her death he had accumulated large wealth on his own account.

Colonel Green is educating, among several others, Miss Ruth Lawrence, now twenty-two years old, who was a ward of Hetty Green, and to whom she bequeathed $5,000.

Budapest, March 30.—Announcement has just been made that the diary of the Empress Zita, soon to be published, will give intimate details of the last attempts to restore the monarchy of Austria-Hungary. Because of her close association with the leaders of that movement the publication is being awaited with the keenest of interest by virtually all the European capitals. It is expected her book will give many interesting incidents of court life during the latter days which are not generally known.

After the conference Judge Thayer said counsel had agreed to select a second expert to examine Sacco and when the name of this man is agreed on, he will name him to act with Dr. Campbell.

The hearing today was on petition by Sacco's counsel that he be permitted to remain in the hospital for two weeks longer.

RUSSIANS COMMUTE SENTENCE

Plea for Clemency Denied. Churchman Will Be Under "Strict Isolation"

By the Associated Press.

Moscow, March 30.—The death sentence recently imposed on Archbishop Zepliak, head of the Roman Catholic Church in Russia, was commuted today to ten years' imprisonment under strict isolation.

The appeal of Vicar-General Butchkavitch for clemency was denied.

The central executive committee, which considered requests for mitigation of the sentences, said in its decision that both prelates were deserving of the penalty imposed by the Moscow Court, but that commutation was ordered in the case of the archbishop because a certain element of the Catholic citizens in Russia might exploit the sentence as being directed against the priests and their religion.

The committee, however, said it regarded the evidence in the case of Archbishop Butchkavitch sufficiently direct to establish a reasonable connection with an enemy of the State.

The decision read in part:

"The court had fixed the guilt of Citizen Zepliak who had been active contrary to the interests of the working class and to the fundamental gains of the proletarian revolution is constantly directed use of laws which guarantee equally for every one freedom of religion.

"These actions are very heavy crimes in the revolutionary republic which, as before, is surrounded by numerous enemies. There cannot or could not be another penalty except that which was fixed for Zepliak by the court.

"However, taking into consideration that Zepliak is the representative of such a religion, which at the time of the last Czarist government and at the time of the bourgeoisie's republic was suppressed application to him of a penalty very well earned might be interpreted by a certain backward element of the Catholic citizens of Soviet Russia, whose religious feelings he tried to exploit and direct, as directed against the priests and their religion.

"We, therefore, as an exception from the penalty policy of the republic, have decided to change the sentence fixed by the court to ten years' imprisonment in strict isolation.

"As regards Citizen Butchkavitch, who in criminal activity on the ground of his office charged the same

BOSTON NEW YORK NEWARK BUFFALO

SHOOTS COP HE THOUGHT WAS HOLDUP MAN

New York, March 30.—A tragic victim of policemen's zealousness to duty, Detective John Cordes was in a critical condition today in Presbyterian Hospital with four bullets in his body, while alongside him lay an eighteen-year-old bandit, James Whitten, the cause of one of the most spectacular street gun battles here in years.

It was a case of two members of the force, strangers to each other, one a detective, the other a police sergeant, both in plain clothes and both off duty, who mistook his fellow officer for a bandit. The sergeant, James McDade, escaped unhurt.

McDade and a woman companion were promenading when the policeman noticed two men whose appearance aroused his suspicion. When they darted into a cigar store, McDade watched them through the window.

He did not have a clear vision of the whole room. If he had he would have seen the two step up to the counter to make a purchase. He did not see what Detectives Cordes saw. For the "suspects" were Cordes and his brother, Harry.

Cordes saw three men, two of them fumbling near the store safe. He took them for bandits, so he drew his revolver and said, "Stick 'em up."

What Sergeant McDade saw was Detective Cordes pull out his gun, and he thought he was a bandit. So he darted in and, standing behind Cordes, said, "Now you stick 'em up."

Thinking McDade was the "outside" man of the burglars, Cordes wheeled to fire. He met bullets from the bandits and from McDade. As he fell he grabbed the legs of one of the bandits and shot the other, Whitten, in the abdomen.

As Cordes lurched, McDade fired at the detective's brother, striking but not wounding him seriously.

The other bandit was caught by pedestrians.

U. S.-JAPANESE PACT ANNULLED

Washington, March 30 (By the Associated Press).—The celebrated Lansing-Ishii agreement by which the United States in 1917 recognized Japan's "special interests" in China has been cancelled by mutual agreement of the Washington and Tokio governments.

Diplomatic negotiations between the two governments have resulted in a new understanding, based primarily on the provisions of the nine power pact, written at the Washington Armaments Conference and regarded as applying more effectually "the principles of the open door or equality of opportunity in China."

In disposing of the Lansing-Ishii agreement and substituting the principles of the document subscribed to by the United States, Japan, China, Great Britain, France, Italy, Portugal, the Netherlands and Belgium, the American and Japanese governments accept parity of interest in China.

WIFE HIRED OWN DETECTIVES TO TRAIL MITCHELL

April 6 next by Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury in honor of the social debut of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Delphine Dodge Cromwell.

The cancellations are due to the notoriety given the Stotesbury family by the relations of John Kearsley Mitchell with Dorothy Keenan, or King, the model, who was slain in New York on March 15 last.

A great ball was planned at the Bellevue Stratford Hotel in Philadelphia, sumptuous receptions and wonderful dinners in the homes of Mitchell and his wife, who was Edith Stotesbury, and other members of the family.

Mrs. Cromwell is the daughter of the late Horace E. Dodge, the multi-millionaire automobile manufacturer. Her husband is James S. R. Cromwell, son of Mrs. Stotesbury by a former marriage.

Patrolman Albert R. Elwood of the Field's Corner station, stood admiring a lizzie in front of No. 19 Brinsley street, Dorchester, today.

Looking into the interior, he noticed several suspicious looking packages on the floor. Leo Robinson was from the house to the machine.

"Pipe your car," began the patrolman. "Also the loaning packages, as though they contained the 'hi stuff.'"

"Yes, th' do," admitted Robinson.

The patrolman then asked Robinson to take title to the station and Robinson consented.

At the station Sergeant John J. Lordan lined out while Robinson was held in conversation and secured a warrant to search the car. The search netted twenty-five quarts of whisky.

In the machine at the time was Harry Robinson, the eighteen-year-old son of Robinson.

After seizing the liquor Sergeant Lord secured a second warrant for a search of the home of Robinson. With Special Officers Leonard O'Connell and Cornelius Leary, he started out in the police service car.

Here twenty-five quarts of old Irish whiskey were discovered in the garage and seized.

In Dorchester Court, before Judge Ferris, Robinson was held in $200 on two charges, one of upholding a common nuisance, the other of keeping and exposing liquors. The case was continued for one week.

Robinson, who is one of the best-known restaurant men in Boston, conducts the Hillmore Cafeteria on Washington street. He was formerly in business on Bromfield street.

WED WHEN MIND WAS A BLANK, SAYS WAR HERO

Baltimore, March 30.—One of the most peculiar of the many marital tangles that came as a result of the war has been revealed in the divorce court here.

Edward J. Yake, former aviation officer, is attempting to obtain annulment of a marriage which he declares he knew nothing about.

According to Yake's story, he was coaxed into a reckless marriage while suffering from a lapse of memory. He declares he knew nothing of the wedding until his recovery from oblivion in February, 1922, at the government hospital at East Norfolk, Mass.

He says he was surprised then to learn of his wedding, for he had no intention of marrying.

Mrs. Rose Harris Yake, the 22-year-old bride, produced a certificate showing the marriage took place April 6, 1919. Today she declared she would ask the court to dismiss the annulment proceedings and grant an absolute divorce on statutory grounds.

FOREST HILLS HOMES SAVED BY SOLONS

The fears of 100 home owners, who had good reason to believe they ought lose the roofs over their heads, were dispelled when the legislative committee on Street Railways decided to reject the bill authorizing the Boston Elevated to enlarge the Forest Hills terminal station.

Chas. A. Murphy

Under the plans set forth in the bill, the Elevated was empowered to seize all the property from the station as far as Morton street. The plan contemplated the destruction of 100 dwellings within that radius.

The bill had been introduced on the petition of the West Roxbury Citizens' Association, of which Charles A. Murphy is chairman, but it found few supporters.

JAIL 'VACATION' AUTHORIZED BY SHERIFF

Sheriff Albert P. Richardson of Worcester, in a telegram from Beaufort, N. C., assumes responsibility for the "vacation" granted Nathan L. Langworthy, wealthy Brookline real estate dealer from Worcester jail. The sheriff's telegram, received in Worcester, was:

"Langworthy's aged mother sick in hospital reason enough for me to be human and allow him to visit her."

While investigation of this unusual permit to a prisoner is in progress there is peculation that the incident may revive the old clash for State or County control of penal institutions, in which the county wins signal victory in the last Legislature.

Deputy Sheriff Gustave F. Anderson, in charge of the jail during Sheriff Richardson's absence in the South, had written instructions from the sheriff to let Langworthy visit his mother at Westerly, R. I., on her seventy-fifth birthday when she was ill.

"With those instructions from Sheriff Richardson and Judge Hamlin's information that Lang worthy's mother was ill, I let him go," Deputy Anderson said.

Langworthy, sentenced to serve four months, following a fatal accident, left the institution Monday for four days' leave of absence.

"I realize that this is not strictly legal," said Deputy Anderson, "but it has been done here before. As late as six weeks ago, I let a boy visit his crippled mother, who was unable to visit him. That was with Sheriff Richardson's permission."

District Attorney Emerson W. Baker announced he will investigate. "It is a novel practice," he said. "To give persons whom the district attorney's office has succeeded in convicting, leave of absence without authority."

CROWD BEATS COP WHO CAUGHT BANDIT

New York, March 30.—A policeman who discovered the robbery of $5,000 worth of silks and laces with a skeleton throw of police inquiries today and captured one of the robbers, was beaten by a crowd and his prisoner escaped. The policeman, William Cornish, is in a hospital in a serious condition.

Carrier Pigeons Pensioned for War Exploits

London, March 30.—Pigeons that were under fire during the World War while carrying messages for the British have been pensioned by the War Department with a keeper to care for them.

The exploits of many deserved the Victoria Cross. One distinguished itself on several occasions. While carrying a message 108 miles it was shot through the wing but "carried on" and saved the town of Bridlington from a bombardment. The bird's mate was shot down by a German submarine.

Another, known as "Flighty," is said to have carried news from the ships that took part in the battle of Jutland.

QUEEN OF RUM SHIPS IS LOST IN STORM

Highlands, N. J., March 30 (By The Associated Press)—The queen of the Highlands rum running fleet was lost during the heavy northwest gale Wednesday.

The queen ship, the largest and fastest putting out from Highlands to the rum armada off shore, was lost while making her second trip to the maritime liquor mart.

When she started for shore with 500 cases of liquor having an estimated retail value of $7,500, she encountered a 48-mile gale which forced her to return to the later, a British steamer which once served as a yacht for Robert Goelet, from which she had purchased her cargo.

The runner managed to come alongside the later and her waterlogged crew was taken off. The boat valued at $3,000, foundered with her cargo.

The later took care of the crew until the gale abated. Then they were landed by a rum runner from New York.

COLLEGE GIRLS EAT AND EAT, GET BRAWNY

What keeps the Mt. Holyoke College girl brainy and brawny?

Answer—good food and lots of it.

There are 735 girls at the college. Their weekly consumption of food, according to Miss C. Maud H. Lyles of the college, averages:

1,000 eggs. (145.000 a college year).
750 pounds butter.
2,000 quarts milk.
400 quarts ice cream.
1,575 loaves bread.
4,800 rolls.
7,000 servings of fruit.

To say nothing of meats, vegetables, etc., all lib.

The food is secured and provided under direction of Food Controller Fred Harkness, who is described as the Provision Poo-Bah of the college.

The secret of Harkness' genius is revealed by Miss Lyles thus:

"He has the mind of a newspaper man translated into the terms of the provisioner. He has a news sense which dire examples seizes upon delicatate celery and flrstling radishes, and even before the house superintendents, occupied with the rolls situation, have dared to dream of

To Make Your Hair Look Naturally Curly
Use Plain Liquid Silmerine

If nobody of the straight, lank hair will adopt the simple Silmerine method, she will have as pretty wavy tresses as she could wish to own. The curliness will look so natural, and the hair so beautifully soft and glossy, quite different from the excessively artificial curls and the parched, dead appearance of the hair produced by the heated iron.

Liquid Silmerine can be had at any drug store. A few ounces will keep the hair in curl many weeks. Being perfectly harmless and neither sticky nor greasy, no one need fear the least bad effect in using it. It is best applied with a clean tooth brush, drawing this through the hair just before doing it up.

ARMED GUARD IN OKLAHOMA HOUSE OUSTED

Oklahoma City, Okla., March 30—special guards stationed about the floor of the House by Speaker Murray Hibbons, who declared he had found a case of whiskey in a committee room, were removed by a vote of the House. A number of members entered strenuous protests against the presence of the guards, who, it was charged, were armed. Several days ago the House devoted a morning to investigating a dice game alleged to have been held by members in the cloak room.

The Speaker said he poured the confiscated liquor into the sewer.

On Wednesday, the cry "crooks" was hurled when it was discovered that several bills had been brought in with the numbers changed and disguised in the covers of other bills.

Charges were made on the floor that $100 was being offered for extra covers of bills.

DREADING LOSS OF RICH SUITOR, GIRL KILLS HIM

New York, March 30.—Frederick W. Burnham, forty-four, a contractor, socially, financially and professionally prominent, died today, the victim of a gun in the hands of Miss Helene Ziegler, twenty-six, daughter of a well-to-do Riverside Drive family, who shot herself dead after having mortally wounded Burnham in his offices.

The tragedy was believed to have followed the girl's discovery, after a ten-year friendship with Burnham, that the contractor was married.

Recently Burnham had attempted to discontinue his affair with Miss Ziegler. He told men friends that his wife had learned of their relationship and had declared he must renounce either the girl or his family.

He was said to have made yesterday's appointment for the purpose of discussing with the girl the step he was about to take.

After having lunch with Miss Ida Murphy, a girl friend, Miss Ziegler went to Burnham's office in the Grand Central Terminal, but he was too busy to see her. The girls returned two hours later, when the terminal was thronged with commuters.

Then Miss Ziegler gained access to the office and Miss Murphy waited outside.

Miss Ziegler was inside fifteen minutes when H. S. Cole, the employe who had admitted her, and Miss Murphy outside, heard two shots. Miss Murphy ran away and disappeared. Cole summoned W. E. Ames of Yonkers, one of Burnham's superintendents, who had left the office a short time before.

They found the two on the floor. Miss Ziegler was dead, a pistol wound in her right temple, a small, new Derringer in her clenched hand. Burnham was shot in the right temple, but was still breathing. He died at Bellevue Hospital at 1 o'clock today without having regained consciousness.

Mrs. Burnham, a civic leader at Dobbs Ferry, where she and her husband lived on their estate, Riverview Manor, and an active member of the Christian Science Church there, and the girl's parents were notified. Mrs. Burnham was at her husband's bedside when he died.

Passaic, N. J., March 30.—Five woolen manufacturing firms, members of the Passaic Industrial Council, posted notices in their mills today of a wage increase, effective April 30.

The amount of the increase was not made known, but it was understood it would be made on a graduated scale and would compare favorably with recent increases in New England.

BOGAN SCORES IN HIS TRIAL FOR MURDER

The case of the defence in the trial in Federal Court of Edward Bogan, charged with murder in the second degree, was further strengthened today.

Bogan, a former prohibition agent, is charged with the fatal shooting of Joseph Squires in the toilet room of the East Boston ferryhouse.

The defence is attempting to establish that Squires was leader of a mob which chased Bogan and another agent, Joseph Perrault, into the ferryhouse, and that the shooting was done in self defense.

Patrolman Irving, one of the former witnesses, testified that when he was summoned to the scene of the shooting, he ordered both Bogan and Perrault to throw up their hands and searched them. He said he found a whiskey flask on Bogan, which dropped to the floor and was smashed.

Captain Henry J. Scaife, pilot, testified that he followed Irving into the toilet room and witnessed the arrest of Bogan and Perrault. He said he saw no traces of a whiskey bottle on the floor and no evidences of intoxication on the part of either of the agents.

He said there was nobody in the room but Bogan, Perrault and Squires. This contradicts the testimony of Eric Thornquist, an oiler, who had previously testified to being in the toilet room at the time of the shooting.

Benjamin de Giuttola, of No. 264 Webster street, East Boston, was another witness who said he failed to see Thornquist leave the room immediately after the shooting, as he had testified doing.

WAR VETS OFF TO GUARD MINES IN NOVA SCOTIA

Halifax, March 30 (By International News Services.) — One hundred World War veterans, sworn in for special service, left here for Sydney, N. S., to guard the plant of the British Empire Steel Corporation, and warrants have been issued for the arrest of forty labor leaders and alleged radical agitators following reports that "Reds" were planning to wreck the plant.

Four thousand steel workers in the plant have demanded an eight-hour day and a 20 per cent. wage increase with the alternative of a strike beginning Monday. The strike is expected to include 15,000 coal miners.

Pittsburgh, March 30. — Philip McFray, international vice-president of the United Mine Workers, was in close touch today with the labor situation in the Halifax district, where dispatches said, union miners were threatening to call a strike in sympathy with the steel workers.

"I have wired Sidny Barrett of Glace Bay, N. S.," he said, "that no strike can be called without violation of the international constitutional until it has been investigated under our laws by officers authorized to do so."

COURT REFUSES TO RELEASE WORKMAN

William R. Workman, who lost his divorce suit against Clara B. Workman six months ago after exposure in court of an alleged frame-up to damage the characters of Mrs. Workman and the Rev. Ralph Bray, a Rhode Island Episcopal clergyman, must remain in Charles Street Jail for contempt of court.

Judge Crosby denied in Supreme Court today Workman's petition for a writ of habeas corpus to secure his release from jail. He was committed two weeks ago for failure to obey a court decree that he pay Mrs. Workman $283 alimony.

This sum was awarded Mrs. Workman when she was granted a divorce last October.

The Workmans had lived in Auburn, N. Y. He charged her with being unfaithful. She sued for divorce on the grounds of cruel and abusive treatment.

The day the trial opened both a woman purporting to be Mrs. Marie E. Darling of Auburn testified for Workman that while making Red Cross collections in Auburn, she saw Mrs. Workman and the Rev. Mr. Bray acting improperly.

The next day she was revealed as an impostor. The contempt charge followed.

GROSS ABUSE IN VETS' BUREAU TO BE BARED

By International News Service.

Washington, March 30.—Evidence of "wild extravagance" and alleged "irregularities" in the control of hospitalization funds, which may ultimately reach the proportions of a national scandal, have been unearthed by the preliminary senatorial investigation of the United States Veterans' Bureau.

The inquiry is said to have revealed instances of "gross abuses" in the award of contract payments for dental treatment of former soldiers. These contract payments were involved in expenditures running into millions, it is said.

The preliminary probe was conducted by Major-General John F. O'Ryan of New York, acting as special counsel to the Senate Committee.

General O'Ryan has taken steps to create special investigating agencies in every State of the Union. These State boards will be composed of widely known lawyers who also served in the army during the war. They will be empowered to hear complaints in their own States and to submit recommendations for action.

In order to organize these agencies, General O'Ryan has appealed to the presidents of the bar associations of all States for recommendations on their membership.

glad at first to get Napoleon after the Revolution.

MUSSOLINI IS mistaken, however, in his idea that "the body of the Goddess of Liberty is more or less decomposed."

That Goddess will be erect and ruling long after Mussolini goes to join Rienzi, who was the original Mussolini.

Rienzi also thought liberty a dead word. He compared himself with God in importance. But a humble butcher who still believed in liberty stuck a sword through him, and that ended Rienzi.

BERNHARDT IS buried with no epitaph on her tomb. Just the name "Sarah Bernhardt." They are few that can afford that after a few centuries have passed. How many have we in the United States? Washington, Lincoln, Edison? Who are the others? Name them rapidly.

BEHOLD A new lineup inside the Democratic party. Woodrow Wilson wants one man appointed Senator from Colorado. His son-in-law, Mr. McAdoo, urgently backs another man, and now William J. Bryan comes to McAdoo's support, backing McAdoo's candidate.

Is Bryan for McAdoo, or is Bryan for Bryan? Does he perhaps think it possible that Woodrow Wilson, whose health is much better, may consider accepting another term?

In any case, McAdoo's chances will not be injured. The incident will help to prove that he is not running as a son-in-law, and that is the important thing if he runs.

Secretary Davis Offered Job as Star in Movie

Washington, March 30.—Secretary Davis said today that offers had been made for his appearance in a motion picture based on his book "The Iron Puddler."

"Why discuss such matters now," he said. "At present I am busy at the Department of Labor working for the government and have no time to make pictures.

"Such an offer cannot be considered while I am in office. When I get through with this office it might interest me."

HENRY M. DAWES, U. S. COMPTROLLER

St. Augustine, Fla., March 30.—President Harding has appointed Henry M. Dawes of Chicago to be comptroller of the currency, it was announced by Secretary Christian here.

The new comptroller is a brother of Charles G. Dawes, who held the same position under President McKinley and who is a member of the President's party here. He is widely known as a financier and is said to be exceptionally well qualified for the position.

NURSE'S TRICK LEADS TO RAID OF MOONSHINE

Attleboro, March 30.—Fearing Walter Murphy's drinking would hasten the death of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Fred Dean, her nurse, Mrs. Dorothy Carpenter of Mansfield, "dated him up" with the consent of his wife to learn where he bought his liquor.

Which is how Martin Yanowalsky came to be raided by Chief of Police Thomas H. Nelson, who found eleven and a half gallons of moonshine in his home. He was fined $100 for the illegal sale of two pints to Mrs. Carpenter and sentenced to three months' probation in New Bedford House of Correction. The jail sentence was suspended and he was given six months' probation.

Murphy and his wife, who live in Boston, came here when they learned Mrs. Dean was dying. His return to the house intoxicated excited his mother-in-law dangerously. Mrs. Carpenter conferred with Mrs. Murphy and then expressed her desire for liquor. Murphy agreed to show her where she could get some and so they went to Yanowalsky's. She returned the following day and bought the evidence she gave to the police.

$100,000 TAKEN DAILY FROM OIL "SUCKERS"

Washington, March 30.—As a part of the Department of Justice campaign against stock swindlers, begun last November, Acting Attorney-General Seymour has sent Assistant Attorney-General Crim to Fort Worth, Texas, to prepare for trial a large number of cases charging mail frauds in the selling of oil stocks. Mr. Crim has reported to the department that "the amount mulcted from the public at this point (Fort Worth) is not less than $100,000 a day. About seventy-six cases are pending.

Here are some who can receive a ticket:

F. T. Baker, No. 283A Main street, Somerville.

"The New York Central railroad is equipped with locomotives that are capable of hauling seventy-five cars of grain east and 130 empty cars west.

"The above information was given to me by a conductor on that railroad some five years ago. I was then employed by the New York Central Railroad as a brakeman, and had been in the service only a few weeks. This conductor was very proud of the record performed by those locomotives.

"I told him that he should have been with me on the Texas Pacific. On this railroad they had several locomotives that had to haul water from the Mississippi River to take water. One of the forty-six firemen assigned to each locomotive received one half day's overtime for putting out the headlight. It takes him so long to perform this duty.

"I was riding on the chief engineer's seat, and we were going along at the rate of about five miles an hour with 5,000 tons of pig iron behind the locomotive and several firemen telephoned the chief engineer that something was wrong in firebox No. 4. We stopped and investigated and found that we had picked up one of those New York Central locomotives on some high way running. That was as far as the matter we proceeded without any further delay."

J. T. Sullivan, No. 18 Webster street, Newport, R. I.

"Some rattlers don't shoot but I know different. I'm pulling out of Mill River one week from next April. I notice we lose seven cars out of every boss on the mine and consider the chain. My top speed today, when I'm riding, raises up my shoulders like tongue. It's then I see what I'm capable of. Big rattler that strings, misses my boss on like the wagon tongue. The tongue starts to swell up. I have to chain it off to save the wagon, an' I'm damn quick doin' it, too."

Henry Larsen, No. 92 Dix street, Dorchester:

"My uncle was certainly a frugal soul. It took him 5[illegible] years to come to give up smoking. He used to use the ashes of his cigars for snuff and the butts he tobacco for his pipe and he gave up smoking finally when he found he could find no use for the smoke."

Betty Bornstein, No. 566 Beach street, Revere.

"I was amazed to read the story about the man who boasted his orchard had large apples. It happens that I own the original tree to his large apples? His are dwarf apples by comparison to mine. One of my apples fell into a nearby lake and turned the whole lake into hard cider. Applesauce."

Lillian Aitkon, No. 12 Hancock street, Dorchester:

"We have a cat that spits fire when she gets mad. Comes in very handy when we're out of matches. My brother ran out of matches the other day and wanted to light a cigarette. All he did was tease the cat."

And a little verse from [illegible] B. Cohen, No. 341 Cutler street, Winthrop:

It was a nice day in September,
That September in June.

LIE WORTH THEATRE TICKET

Percy Pollock and Jane Oaker, in one of the funniest scenes in one of the funniest plays, as they will appear in one of the most peculiar matinees. In other words, at the Special Liars' Matinee of "Lightnin'" at the Hollis Street Theatre next Thursday afternoon, April 5. See the ticket? Every person who sent in a lie is adjudged either clever enough, far-fetched enough, or in any way mendacious enough, will get one of these tickets to the matinee.

The moon lay thick upon the ground,
The most alone in the sky.

The flowers were exuding sweets.
The birds were full of shouts,
So I went into the cellar
To search my upstairs room.

The time was Tuesday morning,
On Wednesday, late at night,
I saw a thousand miles away
A house just out of sight.

The walls projected backwards,
The front was near the back,
It stood alone with pillars,
The fence was whitewashed black.

It was moonlight on the ocean,
Not a cloud was in the sky,
The sun was shining brightly,
And it rained all day that night.

It was evening and the rising sun
Stood setting in the south,
And wrenching that I could see
Was nothing from my sight.

We trust our readers get the drift of the above. It strikes us that Mr. Usher does not adhere strictly to the facts. We'll see him at the Hollis Matinee next Thursday.

Will you be there?

Send your line to the Liars' Contest Editor, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass.

PULLS TWO FIRE ALARMS TO SEE 'EXCITEMENT'

Walter Gallagher from Milton held a fire-alarm party in Cambridge today. All the firemen were there, even to him.

At 1:30 a. m. the firemen responded to an alarm from Box 241 on Harvard street, near Central square. At 2:35 they responded to a call from Box 251 on Columbia street, near Lafayette square, about a half mile from the other box.

Again no fire—nobody home at the box—nothing except firemen with thunder in both eyes.

At 2:46 an alarm almost came from Box 261 on Prospect street, near In ready to open the box when arrested Walter Gallagher at the box on a charge of intoxication.

The police say Wallis was just ready to open the box when arrested. Also that Wallis admitted having sent in the other alarms.

"Wanted to see some excitement."

That's the explanation the police say Wallis gave. They also say he is married and lives at No. 531 Blue Hill avenue, Milton.

ACCUSE WOMAN OF $500,000 OIL SWINDLE

Tulsa, Okla., March 30.—Widespread financial operations of a woman accused promoter were outlined in a report filed here today by R. H. Ozell, counsel for the Acorn Petroleum Corporation, named over to Mrs. Barr by stockholders as and near Bridgeport, Ct., whom it said a half million dollars in fraud was perpetrated under the guidance of Mrs. Barr.

Mrs. Barr, who is now said to be in New York, came to Tulsa from Chicago several years ago and engaged in stock promotion enterprises.

SEEKS 241,000 SHARES.

Ozell arrived in Tulsa about two weeks ago with proxies representing 241,000 shares of stock in the corporation, turned over to Mrs. Barr by stockholders as and near Bridgeport, who, Ozell said, were unable to learn where their money had gone or who that the Acorn Corporation possessed the assets he said were accredited to it by Mrs. Barr and her fellow promoters.

Letters and other data said to have been sent by Mrs. Barr to stockholders was turned over to postal authorities who are investigating. The national vigilance committee of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World also are investigating.

AT ODDS WITH SISTER.

F. B. Hinckle of Tulsa, last president of the Acorn, it is alleged, admitted to Corbit that he was merely a "dummy" officer placed in the president's chair by Mrs. Barr, who is his sister. However, according to Corbit, Hinckle said he and Mrs. Barr "fell out" when she wrote him a few days ago that "you're no relation of mine."

According to Hinckle, this letter was written by his sister when he failed to inform her about Corbit's visit here.

In his petition Corbit charged that Mrs. Barr obtained about $100,000 from stockholders, and that instead of purchasing the assets in the name of stockholders, she bought them in her own name.

BILL HART STINGY, MISS MacCAULEY SAYS

"I had not known him long when I made up my mind that he was not getting very much money for his work. Of course I knew he had a really apartment where he and his sister lived, but there are many people who have nice homes and little money.

"You see, he used to take me out to dinner and there I had a chance to observe him closely on financial matters. The outstanding characteristic of Bill was his regard for money. He would get his check from the waiter and carefully scrutinize every item on it and figure it out himself before he would pay the bill. Sometimes he would go over the figures several times. He apparently did not want to pay a cent more than the actual bill came to. He was not going to be cheated by any waiter.

LOST THIRTY CENTS.

"I remember one night in particular when we were at a restaurant for dinner. Bill received his check from the waiter and after figuring it out was preparing to pay the bill. Suddenly he started fishing through his pockets frantically.

"'Someone has either cheated me somewhere or else someone has taken the money from my pocket,' he shouted to me. 'You would have thought I was deaf the way he shouted it. Of course, I thought he must have lost a large sum from the way he was acting. I was greatly concerned over it and expressed my sympathy.

"Finally he gave up the search and paid the bill. We left the restaurant and went back to Bill's apartment as the Rex Arms. Bill's entire evening was spoiled. That money was worrying him to death. He could think of nothing else. He could speak of nothing else.

"At last I ventured to inquire how much was lost. Imagine my surprise when he told me the sum was slightly more than thirty cents. All that noise and fuss over that sum, can you imagine it? I did a deal of thinking right then.

FINDS THE CHANGE.

"The next night when I met Bill he was all smiles. I asked what the good news was and he told me with a really joyful smile that he had found the money he thought he had lost. He said he found it scattered through several pockets. He was happy again after finding his thirty cents.

"That and the careful way he paid all bills, together with his general, penuriousness gave me the impression that Bill was a hard working man and greatly underpaid actor who was struggling along trying to keep up appearances. I could not believe that a man who nursed his nickels as he did could have much wealth. Now I see that he was just plain stingy. That is where a woman was concerned. He certainly never spent much money on me.

"After seeing him spending so carefully I do not believe I would have allowed him to spend freely for I would have thought he could not afford it.

"But the peculiar thing about it is that in some places, where it be comes well known in public, Bill is a real spender. I guess that is done so his reputation will be maintained. I know of several cases in which he has befriended certain people—not women—which really amaze me. Of course he received much credit for it, and possibly charges that up as advertising. He probably knows that what he spends on the women will not bring him much added glory.

PENURIOUS STREAK.

"He showed the same penurious streak in settling with me for our son. Imagine him the defender of women as he loves to be pictured. Haggling over a few paltry dollars which are needed for the support of his own son. It hurt Bill Hart to give up $35 a month to help me give a son which he has repudiated the food to sustain life.

"He evaded the payment of the hospital bills. He evaded the payment of the clothing bills after the child was born. He evaded all the expenses I had to bear. He kept his money in his pocket while I was compelled to pay trying to keep him as we should be kept.

On B. Hart is a wonderful man in the Duesenberg Motors cause, and he loves two things—Bill Hart and money."

Copyright, 1923 by Harold R. Hall.

Another instalment of Miss MacCauley's story will appear exclusively in tomorrow's Boston American.

U. S. WINS VERDICT IN WAR FRAUD SUIT

Washington, March 30—A decision favoring the government in the suit involving the repayment of $676,748.10 to [illegible] was handed down by Judge Bodine in the United States Court for the district of New Jersey. It was announced at the Department of Justice today.

Miss MacCauley Called Hart Cruel and Callous

Copyright, 1923 by the Los Angeles Examiner. Reproduction in [illegible] prohibited.
(Permission for exclusive use by clients of the Cosmopolitan News Service has been granted by the Los Angeles Examiner.)

Los Angeles, March 30.—The mental suffering of Elizabeth MacCauley is to be traced in additional extracts of the letters which she told District Attorney Woolwine of Los Angeles she wrote to William S. "Bill" Hart, motion picture star, whom she alleged was the father of her baby boy.

Excerpts from the letters follow:

"Boston, April 9, 1917.

"I can hardly tell you—perhaps you can readily understand—how awful it seems to me to think of putting an end to a thing which you . . . had given life.

"It has taken me weeks to muster courage to write this. I suppose I could be cruel and callous like you and become indifferent, but I cannot. And the circumstances of my home-coming were against my doing anything. Since you rest so undisturbed behind your comfortable bulwark of callous unconcern, I know that this letter will hardly burden you. You would hardly understand the feelings that prompt me to send it."

CALLS HIM, "DEAR EAGLE."

"Boston, June 4, 1917.

"My Dear Eagle—I suppose you are now on the Westward trail. Only two weeks ago tonight you were here in Boston . . . I managed to get to the theatre and went to your automobile and gave the chauffeur my card to give you when you finished talking to that curbstone crowd and to say I wanted to see you a minute before you drove away . . . I wanted you so to show the best of me—not the weakest, and such a miserable outcome of it. . . .

"No. 18 Haviland street,
"Boston, Mass. Jan. 23, 1918

"Dear Bill—Please write to me. You have never had time yet to answer three rather important letters I had occasion to write you last February, April and June. What was happening to me was of importance enough for you to find time to write to me before this.

"I had to get used to the ignominy of bearing it alone I wanted to shield you and my family as far as I was able to do that. It often exacted of me all the activities, discomfort, not unmixed with some physical danger."

Statement of Miss MacCauley to District Attorney Woolwine:

"The June letter is the one I haven't a copy of. I wrote it at the Hotel Touraine on their paper, in Boston. He knows the hotel perfectly, because he has stayed there. I went into the writing room and took a piece of paper from the desk and sat down at a little table under a mirror and wrote about having been to see the baby, and I had a rose that the baby had clutched with its little hands and kissed the rose and he broke off the stem, and I gave him the rose stem and I kept the lower part of the two leaves. . . ."

BABY NEEDS ATTENTION.

"Boston, Monday night, Oct. 8:

"He (the writer referred to the baby in a preceding paragraph) has got so observant and active now he will not stay put as of yore and needs more attention and loving care and different environment. I always enjoy seeing him wear some little things I bought for him in Los Angeles. That is as near as he has come to you.

"It seems dreadful to be separated from him so much. And my dear old dog is getting old, and much as I treasure the years I have had with him I feel so helpless before the fact that he cannot live forever. . . ."

Then Miss MacCauley wrote the following in the form of a transcript, she told the district attorney:

"Do you merely leave when you see how my hands are tied behind my back as it were. And have I not helped you to understand enough even if you refused to understand before. I don't know whether it is wise to write you so frankly in this letter, but what is the difference? It comes to me to do it. What are you, a steel trap, a no-man?

"Please let me hear from you and do run up to see the boy.

"Yours,
"B- - - - y"

Why Physicians Recommend Bisurated Magnesia For STOMACH TROUBLE

"Take a little magnesia after meals" is the way one physician put it, when asked the question among thousands. The reason for this is the fact that practically every case of all stomach troubles is caused by an excess of acid in the stomach, which irritates and inflames the delicate mucous membrane lining of the stomach and makes natural digestion impossible. Most of the sour and gassy stomachs, bad breaths and diets all fail; simply because they do not remove the acid, the cause of the trouble. The value of Bisurated Magnesia, which is not a cure or a drug in the ordinary sense, lies in the fact that it is a harmless neutralizer of acid. One teaspoonful in a little water, after meals, will neutralize a pailful of acid, and make it impossible for it to form. Then, after meals promptly stops souring and fermentation of the food, keeps the stomach sweet and—insures a painless, natural digestion. Pure, Bisurated Magnesia can be obtained from any reliable druggist, and stomach sufferers should give it a trial.

FRANCE OFFERS BERLIN CHANCE FOR PEACE

Dortmund, March 30.—French troops today occupied the railway stations at Luttringhausen, Hoerde and Aplerbeck, seizing 150 railway cars, part of which were laden with beer.

By International News Service.

Paris, March 30.—Premier Poincare sent a message to the Chamber of Deputies today stating that France will examine any offer made by Germany through the Allies for settlement of the Ruhr problem, providing it is "precise, serious and direct."

Heretofore France has maintained that any German proposal would have to be made direct from Berlin to Paris.

Premier Poincare's announcement was received with applause. Later the Chamber of Deputies adjourned until May 8, after voting the appropriations necessary to maintain the military establishment and administration in the Ruhr.

Premier Poincare's message was carefully worded. He said the government had decided to allow Germany to make an offer to France through the Allied commission, the usual written proposals to be sent in attempt at reaching a settlement.

"We shall not accept any kind of bribe or unkept negotiations, but we shall not refuse any serious proposition that contains elements of interest and seems to us to offer the guarantees which we have a right to demand and possess.

"There are two methods through which an offer could be made. Great powers or their

PUNCHINELLO OF THE NORTH STATION

Everybody knows Schlomeh, the midget who sells papers in front of the North Station. He has yelled extras there as far back as the memory of man runs. There are some who say he was there before the station was. There are some who allege he has always been there. But that doesn't matter.

The district around the station is one in which drama shows both her comic and tragic masks. Many great and stirring events have passed by Schlomeh as he stood on his soap-box, an humble prop made necessary because God cheated him of many inches .... the war, prohibition, the police strike; scurrying, anxious-eyed commuters; barrel-house bums, pols, publicans, sinners, street preachers.

In the midst of the scurrying crowds who passed him by he has for years stood a solitary, a pathetic figure—Punchinello on a Soap-Box.

There you will find him today. There is no sob in his voice as he yells in your ear to buy a paper. If you ignore your change you will get the same old smile. And yet Schlomeh has had his romance within the week, and it has been a sorrowful o... [illegible]

Marriage Broker Finds Parti

Came to Schlomeh a marriage-broker, with the light of achievement beaming from his eyes. He had found a parti for Schlomeh. It was not an easy assignment for a schadchen. Schlomeh, built too close to the pavement to rank as an Adonis, had to have extra attention in the matter of the search for a mate. But love will find a way, and this schadchen had followed the way it led to Fall River.

"That's a matter for you, Schlomeh," the schadchen said. "She's only about an inch bigger as you. A real midgetchal, Schlomeh. Her people is from the best. And she ain't exactly a pauper, y'understand. Owne her own home and is got a bank account.

"Already I've told her all about you, and she's willing you should come over and talk things over. So might if you ain't got nothing else to do next Sunday you'll take a trip with me, and we'll see what we'll see, hi?"

Schlomeh was willing. Last Sunday he accompanied the schadchen to Fall River and they called on the young lady. She was a sightly widge, a blonde. Her mother was favorably impressed with Schlomeh, who came attired in his best regalia. The schadchen spent an hour extolling the virtues of Schlomeh. He told how Schlomeh was not only a merchant, but an actor in his spare time. One of Sam Cohen's real specular amateurs. He explained that before 8 o'clock each morning he directed traffic in front of the North Station. This was a labor of love. It added not one shekel each week to Schlomeh's income, but look at the honor!

Young Lady Proves Agreeable

Then the young lady's mother and the schadchen rose left the room, leaving the young couple together. I shall not attempt to draw back the veil that must cover their tete a tete duffings. It is say that it was as near by as it could be under the circumstances. love at first sight. It looked like ducksoup for the schadchen — a nice fat fee for a matrimonial long shot. The young lady was agreeable.

"After we're married," the future Mrs. Schlomeh said, "you'd make your home here in Fall River."

"Me live in Fall River?" Schlomeh dren himself up to his full thirty-six inches. "Me? Do you think I would give up the North Station for Fall River? You're a nice girl, and I like you. But I wouldn't give up the North Station for Pope Negri. When we're married you'll come to live in Boston. There's a city!"

"Oh, no," she said. "I've lived here in Fall River all my life. I was born here. If I marry you we go to live in Fall River."

"North Station," said Schlomeh.

"Fall River," said the girl who was making up her mind, chance to become Mrs. Schlomeh.

They argued for hours. It was an impasse. She remains in Fall River. The schadchen grinds his teeth in fury. It was to have been a corpulent fee. And Schlomeh stands on his soap-box near the North Station.

Cupid couldn't yank him away [illegible] And when Death comes, Schlomeh will give him an argument. He loves his North Station.

"She never lived here and I cannot understand how she came to give this address."

Informed that Ruth James had been arrested by prohibition agents, the sister inquired "Was it a big haul?" She refused to give her married name, but neighbors said that a family named Fallon lived in the house.

CONTEMPT CHARGES ATTACKED

Counsel for McNary and Chmielinski Seek Revocation of Fines in Jury Case

Arguments as to the right of Judge Bishop of Superior Court to adjudge Henry H. Chmielinski and William S. McNary in contempt of court, or sending letters to former Attorney-General Allen's Special Grand Jury last September, were heard today by the full bench of the Supreme Court.

Chmielinski, the president, and McNary, the treasurer, addressed communications to the jurors begging the right to appear before the Grand Jury to testify as to the affairs of the closed Hanover Trust Company, then being investigated.

Attorney-General Allen accused them of interfering with the process and appealed to Judge Bishop to return a finding of guilty of contempt. This was done. Both were fined $250. They appealed. The exceptions taken then are now being argued.

CURB ON LIBERTY.

William G. Thompson, chairman of the grievance committee of the Boston Bar Association, appearing for McNary, asserted that the mailing of letters, irrespective of the actual effect, could not be construed as contempt of court. He added that an order reversing the finding of Judge Bishop and discharging the defendants be entered.

Frederick M. J. Sheehan, former assistant district attorney, declared this the first instance where it was suggested that it was illegal for a person under investigation to seek the privilege of going before a Grand Jury to tell his story.

Attorney Thompson opened his address by quoting the words of Chief Justice Shaw of the Supreme Court in the case of Jones vs. Robbins as follows:

RIGHT OF CITIZENSHIP.

"The right of individual citizens to be secure from an open and public accusation of crime, and from the trouble, expense and anxiety of a public prosecution, probable cause is established by the presentment and indictment of a Grand Jury, in the case of high offenses is justly regarded as one of the securities to the innocent against hasty, malicious and oppressive public prosecutions, and as one of the ancient privileges of English liberty.

"In this particular case," said Mr. Thompson, "emphasis is laid upon the thought that the protection of the innocent against malicious and unfounded accusations or against oppression of any sort is just as an important part of the functions of the Grand Jury as the protection of the public against crime.

ASKS COURT'S LENIENCY.

"It is impossible that the public's interest should suffer from the Grand Jury's giving an accused person an opportunity to state his defence, if he waives immunity, and thus is as much open legally to prosecution after he has testified as before."

Attorney Sheehan declared "The court ought not to wield its tremendous power to curb the right of the people to seek protection from the Grand Jury against false indictment by condemning as contempt of court the instinct of an innocent man to ask for an opportunity to be heard before he is indicted.

"The courts ought to assume that among the twenty-three jurors there is sufficient intelligence, honesty and fairness to handle any communication that a citizen may send to them. If the Grand Jurors regard the communication as objectionable as a threatening letter, they have the right to invoke the power of the court."

REVEALS HUGE PROFIT OF FALL RIVER MILLS

Fall River, March 30.—Profits totaling more than $17,800,000 have been earned each year during the last five years by the combined Fall River mills and about five times the normal cash dividends have been earned by them each year during that period, out of which more than [illegible] the normal dividend of 8 per cent. has been paid, while the remainder has been buried in surplus, according to a statement issued today by Thomas F. McMahon, president of the United Textile Workers of America.

This statement is a long and comprehensive reply to the brief recently issued by the Fall River Cotton Manufacturers' Association in an attempt [illegible] not afford to increase the wages of operatives.

President McMahon gives figures to prove that the margin of profit from the increased price for cloth has grown steadily since the war, but [illegible] declined [illegible] during the year 1922. He claims that the loss which the manufacturers attempt to show in the shrinkage in the excess of their quick assets is merely a matter of clever bookkeeping.

For instance, he claims that the King Philip Mill carried in its inventory 1,000,000 pounds of cotton, valued at one-half a cent a pound, indicating the holding of about $5,000 of quick assets, and draws the conclusion that the mill [illegible] items of similar character amount to a quarter of a million dollars.

FILES BILL TO PAY REP. JOYCE'S WIDOW

A bill to pay to the widow of the late Representative Thomas M. Joyce the balance of his salary of $1,500 for the legislative session was filed in the House today by Representative John H. WOMAN JUMPS 100 FEET TO HER DEATH

Cleveland, O., March 30 (By International News Service).—A woman aged about twenty-four, jumped from the Rocky River bridge to her death 100 feet below, today. Her body, the features mangled beyond recognition, landed on the rocky shore of the river. Two pedestrians, who saw the suicide, made a vain attempt to reach her as she climbed the bridge railing.

MRS. THAYER IN DIVORCE COLONY

Free Now She Joins Others of Her Sex Who Have Lost Mates

Paris, March 30—A knock at the door of a luxurious apartment building at Trocadero square, in the [illegible] section of Paris.

The servant-maid at arms opens the door and admits Mrs. [illegible] Rensselaer Thayer of Boston. She introduced Mrs. Thayer to the other members of the "Divorce Nest," as this building has come to be known.

"Mrs. Thayer, meet the Countess de Maupas. And this is her sister, Mrs. James Vail Converse. Meet Mrs. James Terry and Mrs. Langdon Harris."

From floor to floor the novitiate is escorted and introduced to her sisters in divorce. How one building came to be selected as sanctuary for the legally outcast is not known, but it is a fact that [illegible] divorcees, like misery, love company. One is now [illegible] divorced in or is [illegible] process.

However that may be, the entire structure [illegible]

Mrs. Thayer's decree was published by the Fourth Paris Tribunal. Her [illegible] case to remain [illegible] of her husband's [illegible] her marriage Mrs. Thayer was Miss Gladys Baldwin Brooks. The Thayer [illegible] was [illegible] Raleigh street and Beacon [illegible]

The Thayer divorce marks the [illegible] of a woman [illegible] well to the [illegible] the most ardent novelist would desire. Thayer met his wife when he saved her from drowning in the surf at Newport. He was then connected with the Manchester National Bank of Boston, and later became vice-president of the institution.

The reason why the Trocadero square apartment is of such interest to divorcees or those contemplating [illegible] because a year there can be cancelled at a day's notice.

BEAT WOMAN AND TAKE $290, LIFE SAVINGS

Hiding in a dark hallway of the apartment house at No. 5 [illegible] street, North End, two robbers pounced upon Mrs. Elizabeth Marra, [illegible] 61, who resides at that address, and after beating her over the head, robbed her of $290, her life's savings.

The cash was in a purse suspended about her neck, and it is her belief that the bandits saw her take some money from it. With the [illegible] went to a nearby store to make some purchases and laid in wait for her to return.

The men choked her with their hands so that she could make no outcry, and after procuring the money fled. A search of the neighborhood failed to reveal trace of the robbers.

She said that her assailants were tall and thin and wore dark over coats and caps.

War Draft List for New England Being Tabulated by Army

Officers at the headquarters of the First Corps Area U. S. Army, are tabulating in the New England states those who would be subjected to draft in case of another war.

The result of the census of Maine shows that there are [illegible] men between the ages of eighteen and forty-five who could be drafted. But this number would be considerably lessened on account of those unfit for military service.

TWO BOYS DEAD, AUTO DRIVERS ARE ARRESTED

Two drivers of automobiles are under charges of manslaughter as the result of the death of two boys who were struck by machines and killed under similar circumstances.

William F. Rouse of No. 21 Telegraph street, South Boston, was [illegible] ing a [illegible] his [illegible] death a [illegible] of P. Lincoln [illegible] Summer avenue, Reading. The boy's skull was [illegible] died at the Carney Hospital, [illegible] placed under arrest by the police of the City Point station.

W. F. Rouse

John Ginsberg of No. 15 Chadwick street, Roxbury, fell under the [illegible] erated by Robert McMillan, [illegible] three years old, of No. 357 Granite [illegible] near Massachusetts avenue and Northampton street. He was taken to the City Hospital and died. His skull was crushed. McMillan was booked at the Dudley street station.

SALE OF LE GAULT STOCK BARRED

The State Department of Public Utilities today barred further sale of securities of the L. Gault Housing Corporation, which recently went into bankruptcy.

The finding, which was made under the blue sky law, states that the company failed to file information required by the department, and such failure should be [illegible] evidence of fraud.

The company maintained offices at No. 633 Washington street here and in Lawrence and New Bedford.

The department also issued a finding against F. B. Washburn Inc., of Boston, a corporation organized to manufacture and sell confectionery. The finding was based on similar grounds.

Assistant Postmaster-General Bartlett Is Given Facts by Baker and Other Local Men

The Boston postal district needs 200 more clerks and 200 more carriers to cope with a [illegible] in the last two years and to [illegible] a condition that has been the subject of many complaints. At least 100 men should be added immediately to each branch of the service, in the opinion of experts.

There was an increase of 20 per cent. in the volume of mail in the Boston district last year, and 33 per cent. during the previous year.

This 40 per cent. additional burden has been saddled on a force that was curtailed after the war and never increased to meet new conditions.

PLACES LEFT VACANT.

When men have died or left the service their places have not been filled. This policy has weakened the ranks and impaired the general service it was said today. There are eighty-five stations in the Boston district, [illegible] 1922 [illegible] carriers. Some of the suburban routes have grown so rapidly of late that carriers have found it impossible to complete deliveries in a day.

As They Do in Utopia

By Les Conklin.

"WHAT is the charge against this man?" inquired the judge as Throckmorton Tanglefoot was dragged before the Court.

"Dropping a flatiron on his wife's toes," replied the clerk. "Her feet have swollen up so much that none of her shoes will fit her."

"Has the prisoner anything to say for himself?" roared the judge.

"I certainly have, Your Honor," said Mr. Tanglefoot. "I got home one night and found that my wife had trailed my billiard table for a photograph. Every night since then the guy next door has been over dancing with her until after midnight, so I stooped it by putting her feet out of commission."

"I don't blame you a bit," sympathized the Judge. "If I had been in your place I probably would have thrown her out alone with the phonograph."

"Good morning, Mr. Flanagan," said Battling Bluesky, the famous prize fighter, "I just dropped in to settle the details of the big fight."

"I have the contract all ready for you," replied the boxing promoter. "The arrangement is that you are to receive $100,000 and what's left goes to your opponent."

"Ain't there no provision for expenses?" inquired the beast-weight.

"No sah, Mr. Flanagan," was another colored woman's reply. "I just kin get a divorce on dat kind of a showing. I must have money enough to buy a automobile and a diamond necklace and a fur coat and a new hat and a—"

"That will be quite enough," interrupted Mr. Flanagan. "I don't like to be bothered with details. I want you to go to my friend Rufflebutts and borrow a few dollars from him."

"Would you mind telling me what the fight is about?" inquired the fighter.

"Why, you poor fish, don't you want to get home?"

"Oh, I don't care so much about that, myself, Rufflebutts. I was thinking of going to the village movies."

THE ENEMIES OF WOMEN By BLASCO IBANEZ

Start Here Today This Engrossing Story of Life and Love From the Master Pen of One of the World's Greatest Novelists

By Vicente Blasco Ibanez,
Author of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" and Other Novels of World Renown

The Duchess de Delille (Alma Rubens) and the Prince Lubimoff (Lionel Barrymore), in "The Enemies of Women"

"AND I," he said in a reproachful tone. "You are unhappy; all the more reason that you should not drive me from you. I can put cheer into your life. I can guess what you are thinking. No, no, I do not insist on talking to you of love. Perhaps later on, but now—now, I want to be your comrade, your brother, whatever you want me to be—but at your side. Why do you avoid me? Why do you shut your door to me as you would to a stranger?"

And incoherently he continued his laments, his protests, his rancor at her unexplainable estrangement.

"Am I to blame for your misfortune?" he finally asked. "Am I a different man today than I was the last time we saw each other?"

She shook her head sadly. She could not convince Michael, no matter how much she might talk; it was beyond her strength to explain her new feelings. She looked at him with tearful eyes, which reflected the hesitations of her thoughts. Finally she seemed to have made up her mind.

"You haven't changed," she said in a subdued voice, "but I am different. Misfortune has made another woman of me. I do not recognize myself; I am dominated by a fixed idea. An absurd one, it may well be. Your presence increases my remorse. Seeing you I feel extraordinary shame, a desire to die. I kill myself. I have a feeling of suspicion that it was I who killed my son. I remember all that took place between you and I recognize God's punishment."

Michael's resentment vanished at these inexplicable words. Automatically he took her hands with caressing gentleness, as though they were those of a sick patient at the height of delicious ravings. She should be calm. What was she saying? What remorse was she talking about? Her gloved hands, in passive resignation, offered no resistance to his touch, but suddenly they awoke to life, violently freeing themselves from Michael's as though they had just received a hard shock.

And the Prince felt a strong current of repulsion between them, something that he had never experienced until then; the fear of his person.

The Shame of It.

He was so disconcerted and humiliated by this movement of withdrawal that he did not know what to say. But Alicia took advantage of his silence to go on talking, but as though she were talking to herself in a trance, as though she did not see the man who was standing before her eyes.

"When I remember all that—what a shame! My poor son, my poor boy, living like a slave, suffering from hunger—being whipped. He who was so noble and so handsome—and his mother here acting like a young girl, going into ecstacies over ideal love, taking poetic promenades through the gardens, exchanging kisses. What diabolical spell was upon me? And God has punished me; and if not God, whoever or whatever it may be. Fate, a mysterious power which makes us exploit our shortcomings—call it anything you like."

Michael looked at Alicia with pity and dismay in his eyes. He realized that whatever he might try to say now would be useless. The absurd and sorrowing conviction of hers was a gulf between them that could be bridged over only by time.

The silence of the Prince caused her to lose the nervous exaltation that had made her express herself with such fervor.

"Leave me now," she murmured gently. "What could I do for you? I am only a woman now; I am an old woman, seventy-fold, as old as sorrow itself. You need a sweetheart, and I am simply a bad mother, a mother tormented with remorse."

"If you were really alone," Michael retorted bitterly. "I could wait and perhaps time would silence the scruples that torment you. But a man enters your house at all hours as though it were his own, while I must go away, go this, as you say, you may recover your tranquility."

Alicia had raised the handkerchief to her face again, but these words gave her such a shock of surprise that she took the wrinkled bulbiste from her face.

"You are referring to Martinez?" said Alicia. "Poor boy! He is giving up the society of his comrades to come and be lured at Villa Ibos beside a woman who can do nothing but weep. And his visits mean so much to me.

"For I find consolation in fancying that he is my son. His age and his uniform aid in this illusion. I have never had any children. It is impossible for you to know the necessity we feel, when we have lost them, imagining that they look like those who are gone. Please let me enjoy a little illusion wherever I can find it! The poor fellow is so grateful for my attention. He feels so happy beside me! Remember he is condemned to death, and only nocturnal care, and pleasant surroundings, can possibly prolong his days."

AN ANGRY RETORT.

Michael was silent, realizing the uselessness of insisting further. He knew Alicia's character. Behind her distracted voice he guessed the resolute will to keep by her side the young man who refreshed her maternal feelings and was at the same time a consolation for her remorse. But his powerlessness in the face of Alicia's fractional conduct irritated him, and he felt a cruel desire to hurt her.

"You are doing wrong, Alicia. The other man was your son. This man is not, and I know the power of seduction that you exercise over the unfortunate."

Alicia interrupted him angrily.

"You, too!" she exclaimed. "Rodolfo! Don't come after me. I shall always think of you; but it is better for the present that we should not see each other. Don't bear me a grudge. Perhaps some day—" And she resolutely turned her back on him and descended the steps towards the boulevard.

Prince Michael remained motionless for an instant, then he moved towards the steps. But all he could see was a carriage with the hood lowered, and the two horses starting to trot away.

And the meeting with Alicia he had so ardently desired had come to this! He was stunned at the slight effect all his reasoning and his accusations had had upon her. Yes, as he had said, she was indeed a different woman. Something besides his grief for her son had certainly wrought this change in her. Someone was to blame for this absurd situation. . . . It was Lieutenant Martinez who had come between them.

A Russian Prince of Fabulous Wealth and Some Friends Bind Themselves to Bar All Women From Lives

Michael spent a great part of that night in bitter reflections. It did not occur to him to blame Alicia. He even repented his angry words.

Instead he began in his hatred to strip Martinez, the young soldier, of the prestige of his deeds and his misfortune. He saw him without his uniform, without his war cresses and his wounds, as he must have been before the war—a poor employe, a clerk, whose dreams of love had never gone beyond a milliner or a stenographer. And this was the man who had the temerity to become his rival!

Sulking All Day.

The next day Michael sulked all morning in his garden. He was determined to keep away from Monte Carlo lest he see Lieutenant Martinez there. It was better that he should not encounter him.

But in the afternoon the loneliness of his beautiful villa weighed on him. It seemed deserted. Adlin, Spadoni, even the Colonel were at the Casino. He, too, decided to go and mingle with the crowd which was forgetting the hazards of war in the hazards of chance.

As he drifted through the anteroom before entering the gaming halls he came upon a group of convalescent French officers. Desired the permission to go any farther because of their uniform, they were standing there, looking enviously in at the gamblers. Some of them had been sent to Monaco as incurables after a long captivity in Germany. Others came from hospitals on the firing line. On the faces of all of them was a certain bewilderment at finding themselves in this peaceful corner of the earth, where the rest of the world seemed forgotten and where women's eyes followed them with enigmatic glances, half amorous and half maternal.

One of the soldiers raised his hand to his cap to salute the Prince. Michael looked at the yellowish color of his kepi, then at his uniform of the same color, and at the multi-colored line of decorations. It was Martinez, lieutenant in the Foreign Legion, who was saluting Prince Michael with a certain timidity, pleased that his comrades should see him on such friendly terms with a Prince.

Michael returned the greeting mechanically and went on. But that moment remained fixed in his memory all his life. For age and the discretion that accompanies it fell from him there like dry bark from a tree in Spring-time. He was hale in body and hot youth again. He was Captain Lubimoff of the Imperial Guards, who vaulted on obstacles and braved scandal when anyone opposed his will.

He turned sharply and stared, motionless, at the group of officers. That insignificant little lieutenant, a petty clerk promoted by circumstances, was his enemy! "You are going to do something foolish," a voice within him exclaimed. And there passed through his memory the image of his stern old Spanish tutor, Saldana, kindly and tolerant with the weak, a strong man and sure of his strength.

"A gentleman must be kind and never take unfair advantage of his strength." His father had said that to him when he was a child.

WHO SAID IT AND WHERE

"He can bear to die.
He who has once been happy."
The man who has tasted happiness can face death with a certain amount of contentment, according to Wilfred S. Hunt, in his poem "A Young Man's Tragedy."

"To burn the midnight oil."
This expression, used of study protracted far into the night, goes back to the ancient classics and is found in all modern literature.

"When a lady's in the case
You know all other things give place."
So wrote the dramatist John Gay in "The Hare and Many Friends."

"Man's life is but a cheating game of cards."
Thomas Bancroft shows himself somewhat of a pessimist in his "The Life of Man."

Two Tragedies

It used to be a tragedy
When you were but a boy,
If a bigger kid came out
And stole your favorite toy.
But a greater tragedy
Which happens to us all
Is to have a bigger guy
Come steal your baby doll.

ROYAL ROMANCES

GRAND DUKE FRANCESCO AND BIANCA

By Barbara Bayne

KING COSMO I., of the House of Medici, in 1565 was nearing the end of his reign over Italy. Each province had its own Grand Duke as ruler, its own throne. The King's son, Francesco, was Grand Duke of Tuscany.

A rich Venetian, head of the family of Capello, had a sixteen-year-old daughter whose beauty was remarkable. Her hair like spun gold, her eyes black and luminous, her complexion so transparently white that any emotion brought a delicate tinge of color like the sunset glow on an exquisite Lucia della Robbia. But Bianca was guilty of a faux pas and her name was no longer mentioned in the Capello family. She ran away with a banker's clerk to Florence.

Mean surroundings quickly stripped the glamour of romance from the eyes of the girl accustomed to luxury. Knowing that for her there was no going back, with Spartan courage she accepted her lot.

But one day as she looked sadly down into the street there passed the handsome, debonair young Grand Duke Francesco. He chanced to raise his eyes and caught a glimpse of the exquisite, cameo-like face of Bianca as she drew back.

Day after day he passed, hoping to see her again. At last he entrusted a delicate mission to one of his courtiers. About this time occurred his marriage de convenance with the Archduchess Jeanne of Austria. For a whole year he observed the proprieties, visiting Bianca only at night, alone and disguised. Then he threw discretion to the winds and placed her in a charming house on the Pitti square opposite the palace.

The unhappy Jeanne of Austria was Grand Duchess in name, but she knew well Florence knew—that Bianca Capello was Grand Duchess in reality. She had her pages, her court, she was all powerful. Thus it continued until the Grand Duchess died.

Then Bianca's confessor, a Capuchin, adroit and intriguing, went to the Prince, who was easily convinced that he should marry Bianca. A secret ceremony performed in the chapel of the Pitti Palace while Cardinal Ferdinand, the Prince's brother, was looking in every corner of Europe for another wife for him.

But the new Grand Duchess knew her rightful place was on the throne of Tuscany, and took it. Still unreconciled to Bianca, the cardinal took up his residence in the palace. Bianca hated him. She knew he was there to spy on her. And the Prince remained in blissful ignorance of the silent, deadly battle of wits.

"In the Autumn the Grand Duke gave a great hunting party in his forest lodge. Bianca told him that she herself was going to make a certain kind of tart of which the cardinal was very fond. He innocently repeated it and her sudden graciousness aroused the cardinal's suspicions.

He possessed a stone which had the peculiar property of turning dull at the approach of poison. He put Bianca's tart to the test and pleading sickness declined it.

"Oh, well!" laughed the Prince, helping himself. "Since my brother will not eat your pastry, I'll eat it myself."

Bianca, horrified, yet not daring to make a gesture to prevent him, did some rapid thinking. Then, smilingly, she, too, cut a piece of the tart and ate it. And the cardinal threw away his biretta and ascended the throne.

Rhyming Optimist

By Aline Michaelis

WHO says that no justice reigns upon this sinful planet? Who talks of progress, peace and gains? It's time for him to can it! For, lo! of all inhuman acts, all deeds that are atrocious, just hear these lately stated facts, which make us feel ferocious. In Swasiland, a wild, barbaric place, straight measures are now brewing; just heed the luckless fat man's case and what the Swies are doing. They take each chap of portly build, of large and ample stature, the boy whose laughter eyeshake trilled, the boy of jovial nature. They say: "No doubt you'll think it hard, but while your weight still waxes you'll have to come across, old Pard, and pay some extra taxes." In vain the victim cries: "I'm plump, but plumpness is attractive, and anybody but a gump could see I'm extra active! I would not be like Mr. Jones you hear his frame-work rattle, and he's the top of bag of bones for whom the doctors battle. Because I'm happy and content and well-proportioned fellow, some folks pretend I'm corpulent and raise a jealous bellow. I must admit I'm up a stump, goodbye to rest and quiet, to pleasant days while I've been plump, for now I have to diet!"

INTERESTING FACTS

The record for long life among railway locomotives is probably held by some of those running in Spain, where engines built in 1849 may still be seen at work.

The record for British passenger engines was held by the North British Railway's No. 224, which was hauling the train which, on December 8, crashed from the broken Tay Bridge into the waters below.

For some months it lay completely submerged. Then it was hauled out, and found to have suffered little damage in spite of its fall.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

BE SURE TO READ THEM TO CHILDREN

David Meets a Queer Little Woodman

ONE day when David was on a visit with his daddy in the northwestern part of Australia, he wandered into the woods alone.

A rustle in the leaves at his feet made David stop, and a queer little light brown lizard darted out and up on a log.

He turned around toward David, and quick as a wink, a brilliant orange and yellow frill flonted out around his neck, and his little mouth opened to its widest.

"Why, you beautiful creature!" David cried. "I never in all my life saw anything quite so beautiful. I won't harm you. Please don't be frightened at me."

At this the lovely pleated brilliant orange-colored frill folded back in place down around his neck, and he nodded very politely to David.

"Well, I'm certainly glad to know that," he sighed, setting himself on the log in a comfortable position. "I really am quite not one of the natives here."

"No, you're right," replied David. "I'm from America. We don't have any lizards like you in our country that I know of."

"What! You have no frilled lizards in America?" asked Mr. Frilled-lizard. Isn't that funny! We're pretty thick around these woods."

"I wish we had some of you over there. I think you're a beauty," said David politely. "I couldn't help but stare at you with that lovely frilled collar. And the funniest thing about it is when you are quiet you mightn't even tell you had it."

"Of course not," Mr. Frilled-lizard laughed gayly. "You wouldn't believe it, perhaps, but it's true just the same—that frilled collar has saved my life many a time. You see, when I open my mouth"—and he agined the act as he spoke the words, and up went the beautiful frill like magic. David for the first time saw that orange and yellow were spotted with brilliant scarlet dots—a frightful most folks, and always makes a dog change his mind and run away."

"I don't blame them for running," said David. "For you certainly do look weird. But you see even your size didn't frighten me. My dog, about how long are you, anway?"

Mr. Frilled-lizard glanced down to the end of his tail and laughed.

"Oh, about two feet long, I guess," he replied, "and my frill would measure at least eight inches. If you want a good laugh I can give you one. Have you ever seen me run?"

"I never did," replied David, "and like all good Americans, I'm ready for a good laugh any time. Why?"

"Why, You Beautiful Creature!"

"Well, if you really want to laugh," replied Mr. Frilled-lizard, "I'll give you something to laugh at." And turning his back to David, he crawled down from the log, raised up on his hind feet, opened his frill, and away he scooted over the leaves.

"And I wasn't dreaming, either," he protested when he finished telling his experience. "I really saw him."

"That's nothing," laughed his daddy. "One's liable to see most anything in Australia. It's a wonderful country."

DAILY HOROSCOPE

Mary Blake Says:

DURING the early part of today the aspects are somewhat adverse, but thereafter they favor all lines of honest endeavor.

Here is an opportunity for you to put into execution some of your carefully-thought-out plans and projects, and to persevere until the goal is attained.

No one can simply plod along day in and day out, just for the requirements of daily living, without ideals, without ambition, without hope, and get happiness out of living.

You must have a goal ahead. Visualize this goal, picture it in your own mind, work for it, live it, and it will be eventually attained.

This is the granting of vacations, with pay, to workers paid by the hour or day and, in some instances, to piece workers.

You doubtless have often heard wage earners declare contentiously that the "collar and cuff" people of offices in the offices were granted vacations with pay, whereas the workers, who felt that they toiled a good deal harder, had to go without any vacations. Of course, the stand which used to be taken by employees was that the office workers were paid on salaries were not paid when they worked overtime, whereas those paid by the day or hour or by piecework demanded and received additional pay for every half hour they worked beyond the regular schedule.

* * *

Stern justice isn't about the wheat thing to mete out to others. Justice tempered with generosity often proves wiser and more profitable.

Happily, an increasing number of employers are coming to realize this.

In future forsighted executives will devote some of their time and attention to the human problems incidental to running their businesses than they have been wont to do in the past. It is easier to handle machinery than men. Any man who hasn't the faculty for handling men is not longer an ideal president for any large enterprise, no matter how clever he may be in speeding up production, or even in developing widely markets.

Many employers may not realize it, but the fact is that competition is being waged and will be waged in coming years as much in factories and laboratories for the loyalty, the initiative, the cooperation of the workers as in markets.

Thoughtful executive, the workers will follow that leadership which yields them the best returns in profits. If the great majority of employers display sufficient selfishness to underpay their workers in the matters of wages to be insufficient, then there is unlikely to be enough money left over for the leadership of the labor officials who may talk big and promise to get more for the workers. On the other hand, if the majority of employers are wisely disinterested in the welfare of their employees, then there will be enough money left over for labor leaders to demand and get.

It is well that this is so.

* * *

No nation can be said to have reached a high state of civilization unless its workers as a class, as a whole can and do live in reasonably some, healthy, comfortable circumstances.

* * *

Happily the United States, more favored by this than any other nation, has advanced further than any other nation. And the improvements there continued, as well as many other indications, point to even greater progress in the future than in the past.

EARNINGS SHOW THIS SECTION HAS LEAD

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor of the Boston American

New England's prestige as a cotton manufacturing section is still unmenaced by the removal of mill machinery to the South. The fact needs to be pointed out as there are some signs that certain interests with not very good reasons, are endeavoring to keep alive the false story that new mills are planning to move to the South.

The very fact that the exodus to the South "turns out" so prominent over the week, pointed out its absurdity, though the splendid dividend record of New England cotton mills, demonstrating that this section not only has the cheapest power, but also labor, would be do such a silly thing as to give up or attempt to remove from that position such a fine asset.

DISTINCT ADVANTAGES.

There was at the time a bill pending in the New Hampshire legislature, same passed by the House, to attract the removal of mill labor and I suggested that the wholly improbable exodus story was propaganda issued at the instance. This suggestion was later admitted in leading financial journals to have been a fact.

It is interesting now to find Robert Amory, president of the National Cotton Manufacturers' Association, in addressing the Investment Bankers' Association, declaring that, while the South enjoys many distinct advantages over New England as a cotton manufacturing centre, most of these advantages are probably temporary."

Of course it is obvious that New England in turn possesses many advantages over the South as a cotton manufacturing centre.

NEW ENGLAND'S APPEAL.

Mr. Amory concluded: "From a financial standpoint the New England cotton textile industry presents a strong appeal. Over a given period of time the purchase of the selected list of New England mill stocks has proven to be as lucrative an investment as any other selection that could have been made. New England mills are capitalized at around $75 a spindle. New plants in the South cost $60 to $80 a spindle. The South has to earn $4 to $6 more a spindle to show the same rate of earnings on its capital as the Northern mills.

"The financial man always looks for quick assets in the long run. Quick assets of cotton mills are really much more liquid than those of most industries. Cotton and cloth can be disposed of almost at once, stock in process is from six to eight weeks and a plant in any kind of decent condition will bring $10 to $15 a spindle. The contracts and credits of the industry are exceptionally high grade."

"Given a fair show in respect to legislation and I have no fear for New England as a cotton manufacturing locality."

LILLIAN WALKER

DIANA ALLEN

New York, March 30. — Lillian Walker, film actress, indignantly denies charges involving her name in the divorce suit against William T. Wilkinson, millionaire color printer. She declared she had never attended any parties given by Mr. Wilkinson, as alleged in the testimony given in the case.

Mrs. Wilkinson was granted a decree. Mrs. Wilkinson's attorney said she would sue for an increase of her $1,600 annual alimony.

In addition to Miss Walker, three women are mentioned as being present at nocturnal revels given by Wilkinson.

Corinne Mason, a beautiful blonde model in Mr. Wilkinson's employ, Diana Allen, an actress, Anita Brack, chorus girl, and Ruth Goldman, interior decorator. Other women mentioned in the proceedings were grouped under the designation of "various other women."

The jury was told that Wilkinson had been socially friendly with the five women specifically named in the suit. The testimony was given by James Opsata, Mr. Wilkinson's Japanese valet, and Rae Haas, a manicure and beauty parlor.

Opsata said he served Wilkinson and Miss Walker in numerous entertainments at his master's quarters and that they drank together frequently.

Montague also Mr. Wilkinson had entertained women in the hotel, he found intimate and private parties scattered about. He earlier also mentioned Corinne Mason, the artist's model, as having attended many parties with Wilkinson.

2 BIG LYNN SHOE UNIONS PLAN MERGER

General Secretary Treasurer Thomas F. Lynch of the United Shoe Workers of America and General Secretary Austin F. Gill of the Shoe Workers Protective Union, Boston, have confirmed reports that steps were under way to merge the two unions.

The members of the United Shoe Workers will be asked in a question-naire to whether they favor affiliation with the Protective Union, and turning over the property of the United Shoe Workers to the Shoe Workers' Protective Union.

Mr. Gill said the council of the S. W. P. U. at Haverhill would probably act on the matter by April 14.

The proposition would involve the U. S. W. P. U. taking over all assets and liabilities of the U. S. W. general organization, it is understood.

Amalgamation of the two bodies would mean a union of about 20,000 members.

PROTEST VISIT OF MME. KALININ

Washington, March 30—Reports that Leonid A. K. Martens, former "secret" Ambassador to the United States, his secretary, Gregori Weinstein, and Madame Kalinin, wife of the present President of the Russian Soviet Republic, are coming to the United States have caused a deluge of protests to Secretary Davis.

Orders have been issued to all immigration inspectors to watch for the three and no opposition be made by them for entry to make a thorough investigation as to their purpose.

Madame Kalinin is said to be coming to America at the invitation of a philanthropic society to make a two months' tour appealing for aid for famine sufferers. American consuls at Riga and Reval were instructed to refuse her passports over the assurance that her activities would be confined to Red Cross work.

MARKET FORECASTING.

To P. P., Dorchester—If anyone could forecast accurately what will happen in individual speculative stocks, he wouldn't be in the forecasting business because he would be busy spending, conserving or adding to his fortune. The average man who makes a business of forecasting the market makes a great number of predictions, mostly cautiously worded and then a few scores later points with pride to those that have come true. He keeps his own percentages of hits just as some people win in the good game of golf by marking down their own scores. The man who gives financial advice ought to be of sound knowledge and judgment who either steers his clients into the high-grade issues or keeps them from losing money in the bad ones.

PENSION WAS UP YESTERDAY, DOWN TODAY

An attack on the old-age pension bill resulted in an hour's filibuster in the House of Representatives today and a decision by Speaker Young to put the matter aside, Representative James J. Mellen of Charlestown.

The bill was substituted in the House yesterday for an adverse report by the Committee on Social Welfare. The vote was 82 to 64. About 100 members of the House were not recorded.

At the opening of today's single attended session, Representative Hays of Brighton, one of the Republican floor leaders, natted that the House reconsider the vote. He then moved that action on his motion be delayed until Wednesday.

Representative Mellen, an adequate of the bill, jumped in his feet, declared that a quorum of the members was not present and that although a quorum the House could not legally transact business.

A count showed 87 members were present. Sergeant-at-arms Holt was ordered to hustle in a quorum. After a half hour's delay, Speaker Young announced that a quorum was present. A motion to [illegible] members. Mr. Mellen further doubted. Another count showed 122 members present.

Mellen demanded to know why the Speaker yesterday had refused him permission to amend a motion to adjourn. Speaker Young read long extracts from a ruling to prove that a motion to amend a motion to adjourn cannot be entertained.

Mellen declared his desire had been to have the House adjourn today in honor of Good Friday.

"If our leader insists on so much time," retorted Speaker Young, "the House would be through with its day's business now, and such members who are present would have been enabled to attend divine services a month. I never knew upon you that I will refuse to entertain any more motions which you desire to make today."

At the conclusion of the wrangle, the House passed the Hays motion. Which means that the enemies of the bill will seek to defeat it when the House meets on Wednesday.

King Fuad.

Cairo, Egypt, March 30—Three widely known American educators, now connected with the American University at Cairo, were presented to King Fuad, who expressed his good appreciation of the friendship of the United States and his high hopes for the advantages accruing to Egypt from the work of the American educational institution.

Those at the conference, which is expected to lead to further development of the institution, were Professor Charles Roger Watson, the president; William Bancroft Hill, professor of Biblical literature at Vassar and a trustee of Rutgers, and Dr. R. S. McClenahan of the College of Arts and Sciences.

a. In addition to stores where one expects to find soda fountains, it is now patent that many other merchants are discovering the new importance of the soda fountain as a revenue producer.
b. This increased use of the soda fountain includes the luncheonette business, — "compartment eating for apartment living," a profitable growing business.
c. The ingenuity and skill exercised in compounding soft drinks, is making new consumers of the soda fountain's products.
d. This makes us believe the Company's 7% Cumulative Participating Preferred Stock will continue to be a satisfactory investment.

BISHOP URGES HARMONY IN IRISH SCHOOLS

By the Associated Press.

Belfast, March 30.—The Protestant Bishop of Clashel, in a letter to the Self-Denominational Conference in Belfast today, declares that thus far the government of Southern Ireland has shown no opposition to be unjust, and that the real danger arises from the forces working for its overthrow.

"Of course," he adds, "I clearly understand that any immediate and complete understanding between the North and South is out of the question, but I would press for at least a common system of education which would bring all Irish children together and be proof that the Irish people placed Christianity above denomination.

"Would it be too much to ask you to try and induce your government to consider this question and to discuss the possibility with the South ern government?"

STINNES BUYS BIG ARGENTINE TRACTS

Berlin, March 30.—Hugo Stinnes the financier, has purchased great tracts of land in Argentina, supposedly for the purpose of cotton growing, according to announcement made in a local journal. The plantations lie along the banks of the Parana River and are directly connected with the Argentine railroad. It is reported that preparations for cultivation have begun. It is expected that manufacturing centres will also be started.

RAP MUSSOLINI FOR ATTACK ON LIBERTY

Rome, March 30. (By International News Service).—Liberal newspapers today criticized Premier Benito Mussolini for his article in a Fascisti organ saying he was tired of liberty and long for stricter discipline. They declare the article a tactical blunder "since it is from the sympathy of the great middle class that the Fascisti, now dominating the government, get their power."

"Liberalism is very much alive, no matter what may be said about its death," said the Corriere Della Serra. "It not only survives but is growing stronger in both Europe and America."

The Giornale d'Italia declared liberty the best ideal for a modern, progressive people.

RUSSIAN BASSO GIVES RECITAL

By ZOE FARBER.

Another Russian, this time a bass, gave a recital in Jordan Hall. His name is new as enthusiastic about the work of Alexander Akimoff that he added various encores to his program, including several of them sung in the original Russian with little broken introductions in uncertain English.

Mr. Akimoff's voice is one that is well worth hearing. There is quality; there is surely quantity, and there is also some splendid musicianship in the interpretations.

The songs ranged from Handel, through Beethoven to the modern Russian composers.

POOR COAL COSTS ADAMS CO. $300

The Adamian brothers, George, Jacob and Charles Adamian, proprietors of the Adams Coal Company of Boston street, Somerville, were fined $100 each in East Boston Court by Judge Charles J. Brown today.

They were found guilty of fraud and deceit in selling to Antonio Rubino, of No. 181 Cottage street, East Boston, fifty bags of coal which tested 95 per cent. unburnable shale. They appealed.

William D. Fay, deputy sealer of weights and measures, testified that the brothers are under indictment in Middlesex County for fraud, conspiracy in selling fireproof coal and that seventeen complaints are pending against them in different parts of the State.

Fay informed the court that a large amount of fireproof coal was seized at the Adams Coal Company yards in Somerville on Saturday but under the provisions of the new fireproof coal act. This was the first seizure under that law. The judge then imposed the maximum penalty.

Washington, March 30 (By International News Service).—One-third of the government ships now tied up in various ports and rivers are "practically useless" for navigation purposes, it was revealed today by a survey conducted by the shipping board.

With nine hundred vessels out of service, it is costing the government $3,000,000 annually to maintain them in their present condition, the survey shows.

BOSTON AMERICAN HANDY BAGS SELL THEMSELVES

People Who Own Them Are Most Ready to Sing Their Praises. But There Is Only ONE Genuine Handy Bag

THE BOSTON AMERICAN Handy Bag has a direct appeal to women and children. The woman of the house, who has to think of the countless errands, is often at a loss to know how to carry all she wants to buy. The big capacity of the Handy Bag answers this question better than any other carrier, unless it be a market basket. To the child, a handy carrier means much in the running of errands. The Bag is narrow and deep, not too narrow to take most any parcel. It is never in the way along crowded streets and the two strong handles are amply strong to support any reasonable weight. It is the grandest lunch and school book carrier in the world. There is one big point that men will appreciate. The Handy Bag is a wonder for carrying papers, memoranda, blue prints or other relatively sized articles that many men carry back and forth to and from the city. There is always the safe, waterproof purse pocket—in fact, the whole bag is of waterproof material.

IF SUMMER COMES

and you are not equipped with one or more of the Boston American Handy Bags, you'll regret it. It is the sweetest BATHING SUIT CARRIER that ever was invented. Remember this. The sale cannot go on much longer. Get enough Handy Bags to equip the family at the beach. The Bathing Suit idea was suggested by a bright-eyed little woman who evidently knows a good thing when she sees it. The Handy Bag being waterproof KEEPS WATER OUT. But, just as surely, in the case of a wet bathing suit, IT ALSO KEEPS IT IN. Get busy!

If you call personally, the cost is 23 cents with the Boston American coupons from three consecutive issues of the paper. If you wish to order by mail the cost is 28 cents with the coupons, the extra nickel paying the cost of mailing.

This extraordinary sale cannot last forever, so you are advised to get your Handy Bag as soon as you can conveniently arrange it.

Bags are for sale at the Boston American Business Office or at the places listed below:

Veterans' Bureau Should Not Be Made Annex to Politics

"Everything for the disabled" was the popular slogan for some months after our maimed and broken heroes returned from the World War.

With impudent disregard for justice and public opinion the Harding administration has amended it to "Everything for the disabled—politicians."

The compromise arrangement by means of which Senator Moses of New Hampshire is allowed to name the new manager of the Bureau in this district, and Senator Lodge of Massachusetts is privileged to name the second in command, is testimony of the strongest character in support of the charge that the Veterans' Bureau is reeking with politics. General Hines, national director, acted merely as an announcer for the Republican bosses.

Republican newspapers, with an apparent sense of shame, have refused to make even a shadow of a claim that these men are needed for more efficient administration of affairs or were selected because of proved administrative efficiency. In this respect, the Republican newspapers show a better idea of patriotism and propriety than the politicians.

There is no necessity for these appointments in the Bureau office of this district. Never in its history have the affairs of the office been cared for so promptly and with such good results as during the last few weeks, with Colonel John F. J. Herbert at the helm.

Never has there been such a fine standard of morale and discipline among the employes. Never, for a similar period, has the volume of accomplished beneficial results been so great. In a word, the office under Colonel Herbert has been made a smooth running machine and the fact that the people's money is appropriated for the benefit of the disabled soldiers impressively emphasized to employes as well as claimants.

Now all this is to be changed in the interest of spoils and patronage for Republican politicians. Places are to be made, and titles are to be given, and large salaries are to be paid to please these politicians and their active lieutenants. Plainly about $10,000 is to be diverted to political henchmen that should be devoted to the compensating and educating of ten disabled veterans of the World War.

Republican party managers are showing a vicious state of mind when they think that the Veterans' Bureau can be made an adjunct of their political organizations throughout the country and have the approval of veterans and those who feel a real appreciation of their service.

Motor Trucks Tend to Keep Rail Rates Down

Commissioner Williams of the State Department of Public Works has announced that the limit of weight imposed upon highways by a truck, including both the weight of the freight and the weight of the truck, must not exceed 15,000 pounds.

Commissioner Williams acts under the authority of a recent law. We presume that he is acting in good faith; that the limitation is imposed after due and intelligent consideration and that it is wholly in the public interest.

But on the other hand, we must watch these limitations upon the profits of trucking in order to be sure that the railroads do not accomplish the destruction of competition by trucks through these indirect means of harassing them, after having, for the present, failed to destroy them by special taxation.

The people of this State want to keep constantly in mind that the only relief which they have from excessive railroad charges imposed upon them by incompetent and corrupt private management which has bankrupted the roads and made their operation exceedingly expensive, is the competition of the truck. That competition tends to keep the railroad rates from going still higher, and tends to prevent a still greater deterioration in the quality of railroad service. It is the competition which is the life of trade.

Rather than destroy the trucking service we had better build special truck highways. It will not be until some great company has monopolized the trucking service and formed a trucking trust that we can begin to look with suspicion on the trucks as an economical, non-profiteering service

Wise Brazil

And Russia's "Trust" Idea

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

Brazil refuses to agree on any limitation of her navy, saying she intends to be able, at any time, to protect her coasts. She won't attack anyone, but means to be safe from attack.

Wise Brazil. Some of our statesmen should go to school down there. All American nations, North and South, should work to make this half of the world safe for white civilization—no matter what may happen in Europe.

Russia, under Sovietism, establishes fourteen great trusts, buying agencies, and says they alone shall be allowed to purchase goods abroad.

"Trusts?" you ask, and in red Russia? Yes, but the government owns the trusts, and they work for the people, at least that is the plan. Do not laugh at it, it might work.

The Russians propose to control the national wealth and keep it for use at home. Here, where 75 per cent. of the world's petroleum is produced, we are worrying about foreign oil fields and letting any foreigner that chooses buy up ours.

What Is the Legislature Going to Do?

What is the Legislature doing to keep the Commission on the Necessaries of Life alive? Are they really going to starve it to death? Are they going to take the responsibility of starving it to death?

Is there no one interested enough in the good work which Mr. Hultman is doing to appeal to the Initiative and Referendum on this question if the Legislature decides to act under the influence of those who do not like Mr. Hultman and to starve him out of the public service?

RUM HELD 'ROUTE TO INSANITY'

CHICAGO, March 30—In the old days the road led from the corner saloon over the hill to the poor house. Today it leads to the insane asylum.

Dr. Sidney Kuh, professor at Rush Medical College, lecturing before the Mental Hygiene Society here, termed moonshine drinking as "the route to insanity."

"Patients suffering from alcoholism are on the increase," warned Dr. Kuh. "They used to go to the poor house. Now they go to psychopathic hospitals and then to State institutions for the insane."

Sticks to Old Theory

Editor Boston American:

A. Wideman in his "Monkey Antics of Man" says, "Darwin may or may not have been wrong in thinking that man descended from monkeys." He evidently was wrong, as in the last four or six thousand years there has been no attempt whatever on the part of monkeys to again produce man. Or are we to reckon that monkeys calculate it was a great mistake and declare "Never again." But why not stick to the good old theory that God created man in His own image?

Farmers and Prices

Editor Boston American:

Much is being written to help the 40,000,000 farmers who have lost $50 per acre and 50 cents per bushel each year for three years. There is just one way to get a profit price for anything—force it. Only fools pay more than they are compelled to. Just one way for the farmers to force a price. Base his price on the cost of the article and sell only when the price is paid, as all others do.

Why do farmers permit any of their products to sell below the cost of production? Because of their unorganized condition.

AMAZING HAPPENINGS DEPEND ON ONE LITTLE WORD

By Herbert Kaufman

LOUNGERS about the harbor front of Cadiz some 431 years ago weren't particularly impressed as three cockleshells weighed anchor and sailed westward. New worlds are discovered under very ordinary circumstances.

Vital events are preceded by commonplace shadows and great moments ticked from pinchback clocks.

Christ was born in a manger.

Mohammed began his long ride across history on a baggage camel.

The first phases of astounding adventures, illustrious careers and momentous inventions have been uniformly unromantic.

Even the telephone and wireless made a very casual entrance into the news.

So give a second thought to M. Jules Guillot's simple little machine of which the papers have just told you.

Is Man Greater Than Nature?

This Frenchman, so the cables scantily announce, has devised an instrument which obtains positive and negative currents from the atmosphere. When combined, they light lamps and produce heat.

We are told that his first model successfully keeps ten fifty-candlepower incandescent bulbs and a stove constantly burning.

From the description at hand, Guillot's contrivance is no more complicated than a radio set, and like radio is operated by small antennae.

Interocean conversation is a far less credible achievement than the extraction of electricity from the atmosphere.

Nature is surely capable of generating any forces that man can create.

Nothing should seem infeasible to a generation of sky riders and dyemakers. Aniline colors and radium should have presented vaster difficulties to research than the extraction of lightning from its universal element.

The Key That Franklin Dropped

It's dollars to crullers that M. Guillot has picked up the key of Franklin's kite and unlocked the storehouse of eternal fuel.

If—and billions upon billions hang on that word—the ether is a great common battery and generator, industrial and economic revolutions beyond estimate are at hand.

Existing systems of transportation will be promptly revised. Trains will drop their tenders and dispense with powerhouses, aeroplanes tap the clouds as they fly, and great public service corporations find no market for their product. Every factory and household will be its own Edison company.

They Won't Have the Same Worries

Mr. John Lewis, now considering mutual future coal strikes with British confreres, won't have the same set of worries; a world now largely at the mercy of miners' picks and operators' greed, at least one less tribulation—and expense—should the Guillot idea prove practicable.

Hard lines, though, for Monsieur Poincare. Of what use then, the Ruhr's wealth, with blue skies to drive the wheels of all nations? He can tyrannize a few hundred miles of earth, but all the Kings' horses and all the Kings' men can't confiscate the riches of the heavens.

Parliament Makes Faces and Does Nothing

Meanwhile that fire and vegetable eater stubbornly proceeds with his indefensible and indigestible project.

Belgium is now listening to Italy. Mussolini is for intervention and the best obtainable terms.

Stinnes invites a company of American business men to examine German conditions and figure for themselves how much she can pay.

Asquith, who brought England into the war, bitterly assails Bonar Law's "benevolent impotence" and demands blazing light on the "brutal policy" of an arbitrary ally.

The Treaty of Versailles, he claims, prohibited the occupation of either bank of the Rhine by armed forces. The fulfillment of its terms amply protects France.

Sir Edward Griggs, late private secretary to Lloyd George, denies that the Poilu is a collector of reparations. The tricolor is planted in Germany as an emblem of spoliation.

Parliament cheers while men of all parties warn of another Alsace-Lorraine in-the-making. But does nothing.

Russia Makes a Perilous Play

If Russia would not be a pariah—Moscow will do something, and very promptly—to allay international fury against the outrage she contemplates upon Christianity.

Should high dignitaries of the Catholic church be slain by the Soviets, Moscovy forthwith becomes an impious Cain, an Ishmael with every race and treasury against her.

But Lenin and Trotzky are too shrewd to invoke such ostracism. Those men are desperate gamblers, filling an already bad hand with a more perilous card. Mark you, they'll lay it down without a play.

Washington adds its note to the protest of Jew and gentile, Catholic and Baptist, republic and empire.

The hate that slaked on Czar's blood won't drink Rome's.

A Few Less Important Folk

An old gentleman with a very bad memory and worse morals meets a forgotten wife, woos her and proposes marriage. Nine more spouses have been discovered to date. Such a distinguished specialist shouldn't be so careless.

Which brings up the case of the doctor who forgot that there's a small amount of arsenic in every human. He diagnosed a natural death as criminal poisoning, and put an innocent man in jail for thirty years. The law must not accept hasty and unconfirmed opinions. Neither should anybody else.

Mrs. Gilmore, possible heir to several hundred thousand dollars, is particularly weighing the consequence of hasty words. Her mother's will cuts her off without a cent if she doesn't revise her opinion of the family. She can have $200,000 for simply saying, "I apologize."

A fortune hangs on two little words.
